

HARVARD UNIVERSITY
GRADUATE SCHOOL OF
BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Announces a
POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP
IN BUSINESS HISTORY

$18,500

❑ To be awarded for twelve-months' residence, study, teaching, and research at the Harvard Business School during 1978-1979.

❑ The Fellowship has two purposes. The first is to assist a recent Ph.D. graduate in history, economics, or a related discipline to improve his or her professional acquaintance with business and economic history, increase his or her skills as they relate to this field, and to engage in research that will benefit from the rich resources of Baker Library, other Harvard libraries, and the Boston-Cambridge scholarly community.

❑ The second purpose is to provide training in teaching. Approximately one-half of the postdoctoral year will be directed toward familiarizing the Fellow with the philosophy and practice of training managers at Harvard. The Fellow will participate as a student in the Business History course and the Business History Seminar. He or she will also be an observer of faculty teaching group preparations for one of the required MBA courses (such as Environmental Analysis for Management, Production and Operations Management, or Business Policy), and will be offered an opportunity to participate in some aspect of the work of the teaching group. The remaining one-half of the Fellow's time will be available for research in the field of Business History.

❑ Inquiries and requests for application forms should be addressed to Professor Alfred D. Chandler, Jr., 214 Baker Library, Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration, Boston, Massachusetts 02163.

❑ The application forms ask that candidates specify their purpose in applying for the Fellowship, the required MBA course which they would like to participate in teaching, and the topic, objectives, and design of the research to be undertaken. Applications should be accompanied by graduate school records, thesis abstract, the names and addresses of three persons who will support the application, and other credentials described in the form.

❑ The selection committee, which will be composed of Faculty members of the Harvard Business School, will make its award to the applicant with the most outstanding potential and whose background and plans seem most likely to benefit from the resources offered. The successful applicant may begin his or her twelve-months' residence on either July 1 or September 1, 1978.

❑ Applications for the Postdoctoral Fellowship in Business History must be submitted before February 15, 1978. The Fellowship will be awarded and all applicants notified by March 15, 1978. Material submitted with applications will be returned only if accompanied by postage and self-addressed return envelope.

? MOVING ?

Please send changes of address for the Journal of Economic History well in advance of publication dates. To receive the March issue inform the Business Office about the change by February 15; the June issue, by May 15; the September issue, by August 15; and the December issue, by November 15.

The Origin and Resolution of an Urban Crisis

Baltimore, 1890-1930

Alan D. Anderson

"It is rare to find within one volume such a combination of theoretical elegance and a real historian's feel for the empirical materials. . . . The book is also one of those rare synthetic achievements which in brief compass sums up a vast corpus of existing scholarship — e.g., Clarke's and Mills' studies of urban population trends, the history of public utility development, and above all, the story of the economic impact of the automobile.—Gerald Garvey, Princeton University $12.00

Income Distribution Policy in Developing Countries

A Case Study of Korea

Irma Adelman & Sherman Robinson. How much can actually be done to improve the distribution of income in developing countries? In seeking an answer to this question, the authors have developed a dynamic general-equilibrium model that provides a laboratory for investigating the potential impact of standard policy instruments and programs intended to improve the relative and absolute incomes of the poor. The model is rooted in an actual economy—that of the Republic of Korea. $12.50

The Development of the Economies of Continental Europe, 1850-1914

Alan S. Milward and S.B. Saul

The first book to deal with the economic development of Europe as a whole and from a continental perspective, this will be the guide for economic historians and economists. Examining the economies of France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Austria-Hungary, Russia, and the Balkans, the authors delineate certain sectors for closer analysis, such as industry, agriculture, monetary and financial systems, transportation, and international economic dealings. Beyond an analysis of individual countries, this book offers a sophisticated comparative view that sheds light on the enormous transformations creating modern states. $22.50

A Life Apart

The English Working Class, 1890-1914

Standish Meacham

This signal contribution to English social history is an analysis and description of the life of the working class in the twenty years preceding World War I. Topics discussed include the development of class consciousness, neighborhoods, the pattern of women's lives, and the increasing sense of embattlement and defensiveness of the working class against the disruptive forces of unemployment and economic dislocation. $12.50

How the business of America became business.

“Powerfully argued and richly detailed... this is a history of the rise of modern business enterprise, of management, and of managerial capitalism that is written from the inside. I believe only Chandler could have done it.” — Stuart Bruchey, Columbia University.

Chandler's new book shows how the visible hand of management replaced what Adam Smith called the invisible hand of market forces.

THE ECONOMIC HISTORY ASSOCIATION

The Economic History Association was organized in 1940. Its purpose is to encourage research and teaching in the history of economic activity and of economic thought. It seeks to cooperate with societies devoted to the study of agricultural, business, industrial, and labor history. It aims to bring together economists, historians, statisticians, geographers, and others who find that the story of economic change throws light on their field of interest or is enriched by their contribution. Membership is open to all who are interested in the history of economic life in all its phases in the United States and other countries.

THE JOURNAL OF ECONOMIC HISTORY is published by The Economic History Association at The Johns Hopkins University. Books for review and correspondence concerning contributions to the JOURNAL should be addressed to the editorial office: The Editors, Journal of Economic History, Milton S. Eisenhower Library, The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland 21218. Applications for membership should be addressed to: Richmond D. Williams, Treasurer, Eleutherian Mills Historical Library, Wilmington, Delaware 19807.
