

2019 APA MEETINGS

Each divisional meeting in 2019 offers colloquium, symposium, and poster sessions, author-meets-critics sessions, affiliated group sessions, the Presidential Address, the Dewey Lecture, exhibits, a prize reception, and networking opportunities.

The 2019 Eastern Division meeting will be in the heart of the Big Apple, at the Sheraton New York Times Square. Don't miss the Teaching Hub mini-conference, the Romanell Lecture, Lebowitz Prize Exchange, Arthur Danto/ASA Prize Lecture, and more!

The upcoming Central Division meeting will be held in the vibrant city of Denver, at the Westin Denver Downtown. The meeting features the Sanders Lecture, the Lebowitz Prize Symposium, the Teaching Hub mini-conference, committee sessions, and more.

The next Pacific Division meeting will be in beautiful Vancouver, at the Westin Bayshore hotel. Outstanding events include APA committee sessions on publishing ethics, syllabus design, guilt and punishment, and other topics; the Berger Memorial Prize lecture, the Teaching Hub mini-conference, and more!

2020 APA MEETINGS

Join the APA

The APA brings philosophers together. Different backgrounds, career stages, specializations, locations, and even different disciplines connect through...

- APA website
- Blog of the APA
- Committees
- Diversity initiatives
- Divisional meetings
- Journal of the APA
- Social media

Plus, new ways to connect are coming soon. The APA also offers many services and benefits to members, including access to the Journal of the APA, the opportunity to submit and present papers at meetings, voting privileges, leadership opportunities, prizes, grants, and more. And much of the work of the APA benefits philosophy at large. The Grad Guide, PhilJobs: Jobs for Philosophers, APA newsletters, and advocacy are just a few examples.

It is the members of the APA that make all of this work possible. Join or renew today and get connected.
