

EDITORIAL

View from Abroad. It is intended to start a new feature later this year as and when the material is forthcoming, to allow those who have been to meetings or trained in part overseas, to give their impressions and to assess the relative merits of that time and the way in which it was spent. Such a feature would apply to those going on a sabbatical, attending an overseas centre for a period of training, going for a period in an under-developed country and carrying out surgery, or attending a meeting such as the American Academy, or World Congress.

It is intended that this should be both entertaining and informative, and not merely a catalogue of events and work carried out. It is hoped that this will assist others considering such a period at an overseas centre or meeting in making their choice and inevitably it will be a subjective impression but hopefully written in a helpful manner. They are not intended to be great contributions to the literature but nevertheless instructive for others contemplating a similar period abroad.
