Collection of Essays by Legal Advisers of States, Legal Advisers of International Organizations and Practitioners in the Field of International Law

The world has changed radically since 1989, when the General Assembly declared the period from 1990 to 1999 as the United Nations Decade of International Law. During that time, the international community claimed some major achievements as reflected by the adoption of conventions and treaties. This publication presents a collection of essays from legal advisers of States and international organizations, all of whom are among those committed to promoting respect for international law. Their contribution provides a practical perspective on international law, viewed from the standpoint of those involved in its formation, application and administration.

Handbook of Environmental Law

Environmental law has been recognized as one of the most effective tools to translate the objectives of sustainable development into action. The dissemination of information on environmental law therefore takes on an urgent significance. In this context, the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) has produced this publication, which is designed to provide its users with important environmental law documents. It brings together key policy documents, texts of major legal instruments as well as information on national legislation. Those involved in the area of environmental law and policy, as well as its administration, will find this handbook most useful.

Legal Aspects of International Trade

International sale of goods differ from domestic sales in a number of ways and might be subject to a variety of jurisdictions with diverse legal systems. This publication focuses on the legal framework underlying export-import transactions and examines the risks inherent in international trade and the means by which they can be contained. It also reviews the most frequent legal problems that arise, international commercial terms, contractual obligations, bank guarantees and the instruments that can be used to secure payment.

OUR MARTENS

F.F. Martens: International Lawyer and Architect of Peace

by V.V. Pustagarov edited by William E. Butler

The rule of law, peace, disarmament, human rights: these are no longer empty words, but legal concepts steadily gaining force among nations. If the slow but sure codification of international law has put down roots, it is because of the passionate determination of a few visionary but practical actors on the world's stage. Pre-eminent among these 'workers in the dawn' was the Russian jurist, diplomat and arbitrator F.F. Martens (1845-1909). This English translation of the first major biography of Martens is in fact the most complete text in any language, as the Russian author, at the translator's request, took the opportunity to revise his original work and even supplied two whole chapters missing from the original Russian edition of 1993 and subsequent editions and translations. This is an important book for all international lawyers to read and study, exposing as it does the deepest currents of the mainstream of international law in our time.

SUBSTANTIVE AND PROCEDURAL ASPECTS OF INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL LAW

The Experience of International and National Courts

Commentary: Volume I
Documents and Cases: Volume II
edited by Gabrielle Kirk McDonald, Olivia Swaak-Goldman

This unique two-volume work seeks for the first time to address in a comprehensive fashion both substantive and procedural aspects of international criminal law as applied by international and national courts. Substantive topics include individual criminal responsibility, genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity, crimes against UN and associated personnel, core crimes and defenses, while procedural aspects include the right of suspects and accused, the protection of victims and witnesses, and pre-trial, trial and appeal procedures and practices. In addressing these subjects the work focuses on the practical application of the relevant norms and provides both detailed commentaries by experts in the field (Commentary volume), as well as the underlying documentation for each of the topics addressed (Documents and Cases volume).

REFLECTIONS ON PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

edited by Terry D. Gill, Wybo P. Heere

This collection of essays in honour of Professor Leo Bouchez covers a wide variety of topics within the field of international law and related disciplines which Professor Bouchez came into contact with over the course of his long and distinguished career as a practising attorney. The contributions, by a distinguished group of friends and professional colleagues, reflect the diversity of his intellectual interests and professional activities, of both a theoretical and a practical nature. The essays include such topics as jurisdiction, extradition law, human rights and self-determination, the use of force and the enforcement of United Nations sanctions, territory and the law of the sea, as well as essays on municipal law topics relating to international law and on international relations.

A BETTER UNITED NATIONS FOR THE NEW MILLENNIUM

The United Nations System—How It Is Now and How It Should Be in the Future

by Kamil Idris, Michael Bartolo

The former President of South Africa, H.E. Nelson Mandela, states in the Foreword that 'the debate on the reform of the United Nations System must move beyond the cost-effectiveness and efficiency issues, to that of relevance.' The President of Malta, H.E. Guido de Marco, a former President of the General Assembly, in the Preface calls for a reform that requires 'not merely tinkering with the institutional set-up of the Organization but rather a reorientation of the principles projected in the Charter so as to enable them to be applied to current realities'. The authors respond by giving a blueprint for a relevant United Nations, more in line with the Charter, emphasizing wider participation in its work, and the supremacy of its General Assembly. This is followed by a vision of a United Nations that would bring out the best in a United Nations System—peace, security, and fair and equitable development for all the peoples of the world.

FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND INCITEMENT AGAINST DEMOCRACY

edited by David Kretzmer, Francine Kershman Hazan

Whilst the protection of political speech is essential to the preservation of a democratic legal order, events of political violence and assassinations highlight the need to rethink questions relating to the boundaries of free speech in a democratic society. To what extent should democratic countries committed to freedom of speech limit those forms of extreme speech that may be considered as incitements to violence? This is a question that has long divided academics and activists alike. It has become even more relevant today, with the recent rise of extreme right-wing parties in various European democracies. In this book, leading scholars of constitutional law, human rights and criminal law, from various countries with divergent philosophies on freedom of speech, address the question of whether we can, and should, regulate speech in order to protect democracy and, if so, how.

MASCULINITIES, SEXUALITIES AND CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE

by Anne Cossins

Why is child sexual abuse committed primarily by men and male adolescents, unlike other forms of child abuse? Is child sex offending, rather than being a deviant masculine sexual practice, related to normative masculine practices, that is, practices structured on dynamic and changing relations of power? Using a practice-based sociological approach, the relationship between masculinities, sexualities and child sexual abuse is analysed and the power/powerlessness theory is developed to explain the predominantly male problem of child sex offending. The book argues that an offender's experiences of powerlessness as a result of his relationships with other men is the key to understanding child sex offending, since sexuality is a key social practice for the alleviation of experiences of powerlessness and for establishing relations of power with other men. In the final chapter, the theory is tested through a re-analysis of offender interviews.

REINVENTING PEACEKEEPING IN AFRICA
*Conceptual and Legal Issues in ECOMOG Operations

by Funmi Olonisakin

The euphoric cries of a peaceful and more dynamic 'new world order,' which followed the end of the Cold War have been silenced by the increased intensity of local conflicts around the world. The humanitarian crises resulting from these conflicts have attracted greater international attention. Perhaps even more tragic is the failure of the international community to find early effective response to these conflicts, which have profound security implications for the affected regions and have led to the collapse of state structures in some cases. This book reconsiders the role of the UN and regional organisations such as ECOWAS in Africa. It examines the response to the civil war in Liberia, which served as a precursor to the international response to the crisis in Sierra Leone. It both offers an analysis of a new conceptual framework for managing a specific class of violent conflict, and provides first hand account of the character of a force that attempted to apply this approach.

International Organizations before National Courts

August Reinisch

This book presents a radical, empirical investigation of how national courts “react” to disputes involving international organizations, analyzing in particular whether such organizations should be immune to national jurisdictions. Under the headings “domestic legal personality” and “immunity” of international organizations, some of the issues covered have already been treated in international legal scholarship, mostly in the form of short articles or case notes. This study, however, provides a thorough comparative analysis and the largest compilation of relevant decisions on the subject, making it indispensable for practitioners as well as academics in the field.

The Making of Modern Intellectual Property Law

The British Experience 1760–1911

Brad Sherman and Lionel Bently

This book is the first detailed historical account of intellectual property law. In part, it examines why intellectual property law with its subcategories of patents, copyright, designs and trademarks took the shape that it did over the course of the nineteenth century. In addition the authors deal with ways in which the law grants property status to intangibles and describe how the law came to create techniques that enabled it to recognize protectable intangibles, and the inescapable problems that have arisen from their use.

On Civil Procedure

Connected Papers

J.A. Jolowicz

This comparative analysis of civil procedure concentrates on the purposes served by the institution of legislation rather than the intentions of those who litigate. Stressing that those purposes go far beyond mere nonviolent dispute resolution, Jolowicz conducts a comparative examination of procedural law in an attempt to explain the ideas that underlie its constituent elements. He also deals with the reform of English law and the consequences that the new Civil Procedure Rules will have on the character of English procedural law.

Global Business Regulation

John Braithwaite and Peter Drahos

How has the regulation of business shifted from national to global institutions? What are the mechanisms of globalization? Who are the key actors? What of democratic sovereignty? In which cases has globalization been successfully resisted? These questions are confronted across an amazing sweep of the critical areas of business regulation—from contract, intellectual property and corporations law, to trade, telecommunications, labor standards, drugs, food, transport and environment. This book examines the role played by global institutions such as the World Trade Organization, World Health Organization, the OECD, IMF, Moodys and the World Bank, as well as various NGOs and significant individuals. Incorporating both history and analysis, Global Business Regulation will become the standard reference for readers in business, law, politics, and international relations.

Migration

The Controversies and the Evidence

Riccardo Faini, Jaime de Melo, and Klaus F. Zimmermann, Editors

This volume takes a critical look at the current divide over immigration policies. It hopes to shed new light on the debate by bringing together papers that investigate the link between trade and factor mobility, particularly labor migration, from theoretical and empirical perspectives. The team of distinguished international contributors suggests far-reaching implications for business, policy making and scholarship. This is a significant addition to the literature on the economics of migration.
