

People in Political Science

Activities

Sang-Yong Choi, immediate past president of the Korean Political Science Association and host of the 17th IPSA World Congress, will return to duties as director of the Asiatic Research Center of Korea University.

Bob Darcy, Regents Professor of Political Science and Statistics, Oklahoma State University, has been appointed to the Oklahoma Commission on the Status of Women for a term ending 2001. Darcy will be a Bruce Fellow at the University of Keele (England) during 1998.

Samual B. Hoff, ROTC Director and professor of political science, Delaware State University, is serving his second year as a member of the Board of Directors of the United Nations Association of America-Delaware Division. He also recently served on the community advisory board of the Wilmington News Journal.

Theodore McNelly, professor emeritus, University of Maryland, presented the first keynote address at the Forum Commemorating the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Constitution of Japan, on November 17, 1997. The Forum was sponsored by a group of Diet members headed by former Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama. McNelly also spoke at a meeting of the Liberal Democratic Party Research Committee on the Constitution, and to a seminar of graduate students and faculty at Waseda University.

William F.S. Miles, professor, department of political science, Northeastern University, recently completed a nine-month Senior Scholar Fulbright Research Fellowship for Africa. Miles spent his time studying language and politics in Mauritius.

John T. Rourke, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, was elected president of the International Studies Association-Northeast at the association's annual conference in Philadelphia.

Edward Still has been appointed director of the Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, in Washington, D.C.

Chun-tu Hsueh, Huang Hsing Foundation (USA), edited or coedited three books published in China in 1997: New Dimensions of China's Diplomacy, with Ambassador Liu Shan (World Affairs Press); The New Russia: Politics, Economics, and Diplomacy (Chinese Academy of Social Sciences); and The Modernization of the Legal System and China's Economic Development (Nanjing Normal University Press). Additionally, the Free University of Berlin has established a lecture on Asian affairs in his name.

David L. Tubbs, department of politics, Princeton University, has been named associate editor for the American Journal of Jurisprudence (University of Notre Dame Law School).

Richard Vengroff, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, has been elected vice president of the American Council of Quebec Studies.

Bruce Vladeck, former administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration and winner of the 1996 APSA Hubert Humphrey Award, was recently named by President Clinton to serve on the national commission tasked to redesign Medicare.

David Walker, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, has become a member of the Board of Trustees of the National Academy of Public Administration.

Administrative Appointments

Nelson C. Dometrius, interim director, Center for Public Service, Texas Tech University.

Robert H. "Robin" Dorff, director, National Security Strategy Program, and professor, department of national security and strategy, U.S. Army War College; formerly North Carolina State University.

Robert S. Gilmour, director, Master's in Public Administration Program, and director, Institute of Urban and Public Affairs, University of Connecticut.

Jeffrey R. Hennig, chair, department of political science, George Washington University.

Roger E. Kanet, professor and dean, graduate school of international studies, University of Miami; formerly University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Judith Kornberg, director, Continuing Education and Program Development

Spotlight

Earl Bender, longtime APSA member and political consultant, was chosen Campaigns and Elections magazine's "Mover & Shaker" for October/November 1997. Bender, cofounder and president of Avenel Associates, Inc., began his career working on the presidential campaigns of Jimmy Carter. He has since worked as a consultant to Sen. George Brown (D-CA), the Sierra Club, the Teamsters, and the NEA. Asked by Campaigns and Elections what he would do if he were president for a day, Bender pledged to "abolish the death penalty [and] eliminate the designated hitter and eliminate inter-league play."

People in Political Science

opment, Purchase College, State University of New York.

Jack Knott, director, Institute of Government and Public Affairs, University of Illinois System, University of Illinois at Chicago.

David J. Lanoue, chair, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

Andrew McFarland, acting head, department of political science, University of Illinois at Chicago.

E. Philip Morgan, dean, Graduate School of International Policy Studies, Monterey Institute of International Studies; formerly Indiana University.

Louis W. Pauly, director, Center for International Studies, University of Toronto.

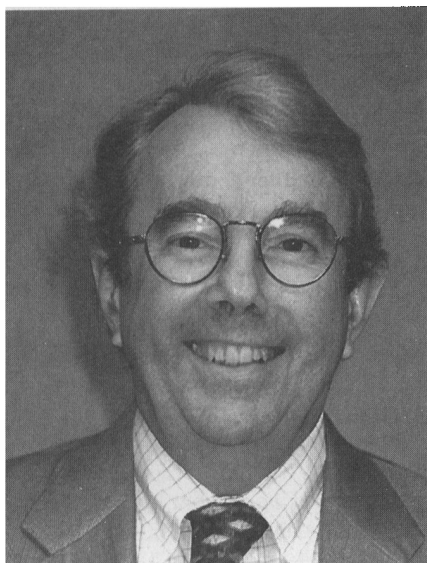

Steven A. Peterson, director, School of Public Affairs, Pennsylvania State University, Harrisburg; formerly Alfred State University.

Pamela H. Rodgers, professor and chair, department of political science/public administration, University of Wisconsin-La Crosse.

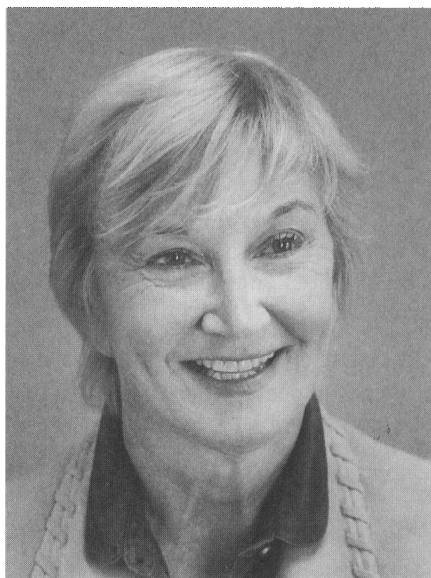

Leslie Paul Thiele, chair, department of political science, University of Florida.

Cynthia Watson, associate dean, National War College.

Lois Duke Whitaker, chair, department of political science, Georgia Southern University.

E. Philip Morgan

Lois Duke Whitaker

Christopher Wlezien, director, Institute for the Study of Political Economy, University of Houston.

New Appointments

Scott R. Bowman, assistant professor, department of political science, California State University, Los Angeles.

David S. Brown, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Roger Durham, assistant professor, department of political science, Aquinas College (MI).

Regina Freer, instructor, department of politics, Occidental College.

Dennis Galvan, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Florida.

Jack Knott, professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Chicago; formerly Michigan State University.

Drew Lanier, assistant professor, department of political science, University Central Florida.

David J. Lanoue, professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly at University of California, Riverside.

David Leal, assistant professor, department of political science, State University of New York at Buffalo.

V. Bradley Lewis, assistant professor, School of Philosophy, The Catholic University of America.

Timothy C. Lim, assistant professor, department of political science, California State University, Los Angeles.

Jeffrey Ling, assistant professor, department of political science, The College of Wooster.

Ellen Lust-Okar, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Melissa Marschall, assistant professor, department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina; formerly SUNY-Stony Brook.

Grant Neeley, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

Blake Nelson, assistant professor of criminal justice, School of Public Affairs, Pennsylvania State University, Harrisburg.

Steven A. Peterson, professor of politics and public affairs, School of Public Affairs, Pennsylvania State University, Harrisburg.

Movindri Reddy, assistant professor, department of diplomacy and world affairs, Occidental College.

Adolph Reed Jr., professor of political science and African American studies, University of Illinois at Chicago; formerly Northwestern University.

Elizabeth Remick, assistant professor, department of political science, Tufts University.

Brian C. Schmidt, assistant professor of political science and international relations, State University of New York at New Paltz.

Mark Siegel, full-time faculty with the graduate school of political management and acting director, Semester in Washington Program, George Washington University.

Randolph T. Stevenson, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Vickie Sullivan, assistant professor, department of political science, Tufts University.

Andrew B. Whitford, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Promotions

Greg Andranovich, associate professor, department of political science, California State University, Los Angeles.

Jeanne Nienaber Clarke, professor, department of political science, University of Arizona.

Michael J. Coppedge, associate professor with tenure, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame.

Robert Devigne, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Tufts University.

Craig Emmert, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

James M. Glaser, associate professor, department of political science, Tufts University.

Thomas W. Heilke, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Kansas.

Mark Kessler, professor, department of political science, Bates College.

Audie Klotz, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Illinois at Chicago.

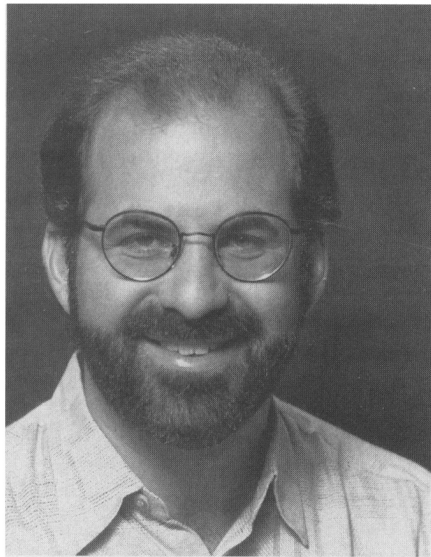

Jon A. Krosnick, professor of political science and psychology, Ohio State University.

Cecilia G. Manrique, professor, department of political science/public administration, University of Wisconsin-La Crosse.

Evan McKenzie, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Illinois at Chicago.

Karen Rasler, full professor, department of political science, Indiana University.

Robert Rohrschneider, associate professor, department of political science, Indiana University.

Jon A. Krosnick

Diane Singerman, associate professor, department of government, American University.

Glen Sussman, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Old Dominion University.

Wen Fang Tang, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Pittsburgh.

Leonardo Villalón, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Kansas.

Retirements

Phillip C. Chapman, associate professor, department of political science, University of Arizona.

Edward M. Goldberg, emeritus professor of political science, California State University, Los Angeles.

Roger E. Kanet, professor, department of political science; associate vice chancellor for academic affairs and director of international programs and studies, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Michael C. Stafford, associate professor emeritus, department of political science, Central Michigan University.

Frank Tachau, emeritus professor of political science, department of political science, University of Illinois at Chicago.

Frederick C. Turner, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Timothy Duvall, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, University of Arizona.

Joyce Gelb, professor, Center for the Study of Women and Society, visiting professor of political science, Yale University.

Kimberly James, visiting instructor, department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.

Miriam Levitt, visiting assistant director, department of political science, Georgia State University.

Shannan Mattiace, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, Bates College.

Bernadette Nye, visiting scholar, department of government, American University.

Robert C. Pirro, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, Georgia State University.

George Romoser, director, Technology, Society, and Values Program, University of New Hampshire, was a visiting fellow at the Institute for Far Eastern Studies, Kyungnam University in Seoul, Korea during August 1997.

Kenneth Shadlen, visiting professor for Latin American studies, University of Connecticut.

Zeric Smith, visiting instructor, department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.

David L. Tubbs, visiting instructor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame.

Ed Wingenbach, research assistant professor, department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.