

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

ALAN R. ANDREASEN is Professor of Business Administration and Research Professor, Survey Research Laboratory at the University of Illinois. He has published articles in Journal of Marketing, Journal of Marketing Research, and Journal of Consumer Affairs. He has written or edited five books, one of which is The Disadvantaged Consumer (Free Press, 1975).

ARTHUR BEST is Assistant Professor, Western New England College School of Law. He was associated with the Center for Study of Responsive Law from 1974 to 1976, and has served as special counsel to the New York City Commissioner of Consumer Affairs. He has taught at Michigan State University and at the New School for Social Research, and has been a trial attorney for the Federal Trade Commission. He received the J.D. degree in 1969 from the University of Pennsylvania Law School and the A.B. degree in 1966 from Columbia University.

JOHN A. HANNIGAN is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Scarborough College, University of Toronto. He has published articles on legitimacy and public organizations, mass media in Canadian society, and organizational responses to natural disasters. His current research interests include Canadian regulatory agencies and the implications of local government reorganization in urban areas.

VIRGINIA A. HIDAY is Assistant Professor of Sociology at North Carolina State University, Raleigh. Her previous publications have been in the area of population. She embarked on studies of mental commitment as a postdoctoral fellow at Duke University Medical Center. She is currently planning a statewide study of mental commitment practices including surveys of lawyers' pre-courtroom behavior and lawyers' and judges' attitudes toward mental illness, psychiatry, and mental hospitalization.

JOHN MONAHAN is a psychologist on the faculty of the Program in Social Ecology at the University of California, Irvine, and recently completed a year as a Fellow in Law and Psychology at Harvard Law School. He is the chairman of the American Psychological Association's Task Force on Psychology and Criminal Justice and a member of the President's Commission on Mental Health (Task Panel on Legal and Ethical Issues). His most recent book, with Kenneth Heller, is Psychology and Community Change.

ERIC H. STEELE is a Research Attorney at the American Bar Foundation. After studying at Yale University (A.B.), Harvard Law School (LL.B.) and in the Department of Social Relations, Harvard University, he was a Research Fellow at the Center for Studies in Criminal Justice, University of Chicago Law School, and practiced law for five years in Chicago. His research interests and writings are in the areas of dispute institutions, consumer protection, the regulation of the legal profession, and prison organization and policy.

CAROL A. B. WARREN is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Sociology and a Research Associate of the Social Science Research Institute at the University of Southern California. She has published in the areas of mental health and the law, deviance and crime, and human sexuality.