New strategies for close reading and analysis

Digging into Literature

Interactive Media

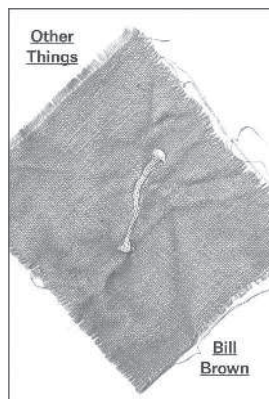

LaunchPad Solo for Literature, a set of online materials and tools, helps beginning literature students learn and practice close reading and critical thinking skills in an interactive environment. Easy-to-use and easy-to-assign modules based on widely taught literary selections guide students through three common assignment types: responding to a reading, drawing connections between texts, and instructor-led collaborative close reading.

- Access nearly 500 reading comprehension quizzes on commonly taught selections
- Watch engaging videos by well-known authors on literary elements such as character, dialogue, and voice
- Teach from more than 200 additional literary selections
- Add your own content

Literary & Visual Studies

Other Things

Bill Brown

"In publishing there is a difference between making a splash and actually making waves. Brown's work has done both. He opens his lens this time to a wide array of aesthetic and cultural objects from indigenous ethnographic sculpture to the kitsch memorabilia of 9/11. Along the way, there are readings devoted to material objects in canonical literature and more popular contemporary writing."—Garrett Stewart, author of Bookwork

Image Science

Iconology, Visual Culture, and Media Aesthetics

W. J. T. Mitchell

"Image Science is fascinating and a wonderful account of a leading scholar's rich research. As always, Mitchell's writing is erudite, engaging, and challenging; his thinking mindful and provocative in equal measure; his arguments dazzling; his insights startling."—Marquard Smith, Kingston University, London

How Poems Think

Reginald Gibbons

"Ranging from Homer, Pindar, and Sappho through French Symbolism and modern Russian to American poetry of our day, Gibbons has composed a hymn of praise to the spell-casting powers of patterned language. This erudite study mingles mysticism, philology, psychoanalysis, and mischief: it should provoke the liveliest arguments around."

—Rosanna Warren, author of Ghost in a Red Hat

Physics Envy

American Poetry and Science in the Cold War and After

Peter Middleton

"Middleton explores insightfully and sensitively how American poets from Rukeyser to Hejinian respond to poetry's deprivileging as a source of epistemological knowledge; and it is genuinely exciting to see prominent scientists such as Oppenheimer and Feynman, as well as an array of mid-twentieth century social scientists, treated as thinkers who can help us better understand Cold War-era literature. A delight to read."—Brian M. Reed, author of Nobody's Business

The Worldmakers

Global Imagining in Early Modern Europe

Ayesha Ramachandran

"The Worldmakers is an impressive, wide-ranging, beautifully researched book with a skillfully articulated argument about a momentous shift in 'global imaginings' in early modern thought and literature. The topic is one that could easily become vague and elusive, but Ramachandran succeeds time and time again in giving it clear focus and definition."—Gordon Braden, University of Virginia

From Reaktion

Roland Barthes

Andy Stafford

"Stafford succeeds excellently in loosening Barthes from the grip of theoretical ideologies and brings out the mobility and the desire of his movement across the terrain of postwar France. A major contribution to the understanding of Barthes as a theorist and as a writer."—Patrick Ffrench, author of The Time of Theory

Teaching the Latin American Boom

Lucille Kerr and Alejandro Herrero-Olaizola, eds.

“The attention to the framing of the Boom makes this volume more than just a study of the Boom; it stretches to cover a great deal of territory, literarily speaking, of twentieth- and twenty-first century literature. This is a very important addition to the series.”

—Gwen Kirkpatrick
Georgetown University

Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies

Alexandra Schultheis Moore and Elizabeth Swanson Goldberg, eds.

“The time for human rights and literature has clearly come. In this field, Goldberg and Moore are among the most qualified to edit a volume for the MLA Options for Teaching series. The collection will help to expand thinking—and questions—about these interdisciplinary studies.”

—Domna Stanton
Graduate Center, City University of New York
