

900 years ago, a struggle between church and state revolutionized Western Law.

In a book of astonishing range and dramatic style, this noted lawyer and historian traces the roots of Western legal institutions and concepts to the Papal Revolution of the late eleventh century, an upheaval that established modern law, of both the church and the state.

Challenging conventional nationalistic approaches to legal history, Berman explores the various types of legal systems that evolved from this revolution in order to shed light on the crisis of the Western legal tradition in our time. $32.50

POLICING

A Social Behaviorist Perspective Richard Sykes and Edward Brent

Sykes and Brent study interaction between police and civilians proposing that officers, complainants, and suspects form a "volatile workgroup" of which the officer is the supervisor and chief problem solver. Using Markov models they develop a social psychological theory of police-civilian interaction. "Innovative and often brilliant study of police-civilian interaction." Susan Martin

290 pages, $30.00 cloth

LAWYERS IN SOVIET WORK LIFE

Louise Shelley

Shelley studies two diverse groups of Soviet lawyers, proposing that lawyers in the workplace insure the flexibility of Soviet law, thus making tolerable what would otherwise be an excessively rigid system. "Illuminates the functioning of both economic and non-economic Soviet organizations, taking us inside the system." Peter Juviler

186 pages, $20.00 cloth (February)

DELINQUENCY IN INDIA

A Comparative Analysis

Clayton A. Hartjen and S. Priyadarsini

Hartjen and Priyadarsini explore reasons juvenile delinquency is a minor social problem in India but a major one in the United States. In India, delinquency is a matter for the family and community to handle, not a social problem to be dealt with by police, courts or correctional agencies.

273 pages, $27.50 cloth

CIGARETTES

The Battle Over Smoking

Ronald Troyer and Gerald Markle

This unique approach to the history of public attitudes toward smoking brings a badly needed perspective to an emotionally charged issue. "A first-rate study of ... considerable interest to the general public, to sociologists and political scientists, and to everyone interested in public health."

Joseph Gusfield

150 pages, $17.50 cloth; $10.00 paper

THE OTHER SIDE OF DELINQUENCY

Waln Brown

With a Foreword by Donald J. West

In this moving autobiography, Brown describes his early life and teenage years as a delinquent and his struggle to escape from the violence and institutions that threatened to engulf him. Contrasting his personal experiences and official transcripts, Brown brings an unusual mixture of professional skill and personal honesty to a topic of wide interest. "Provocative, suggestive, and enthralling." James F. Short

POLICING A CLASS SOCIETY

The Experience of American Cities, 1865-1915

Sidney Haring

At the turn-of-the-century in the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley region, capitalists used the police force to control the working class. Using a class-struggle approach, Haring examines how police repressed strikes, controlled tramping, supervised leisure activities like drinking, and spread the fear of crime to legitimize a repressive police force.
