The Two Winchester Bibles

Walter Oakeshott

This is a full-length study of two twelfth-century Bibles. The first, with a famous series of historiated initials, is in the Cathedral Library at Winchester, while the second is in the Bodleian Library (the Auct. Bible) having come there from Winchester in 1601. Illustrated £140

Newman and the Gospel of Christ

Roderick Strange

Nowhere in his writings does Newman supply an extended account of his understanding of Christ. His view is scattered among sermons and essays, lectures and letters. This book investigates the many fragmentary passages to see whether they are consistent. What emerged is a remarkably complete teaching about the Christ which can be discerned by the 1800s and was still being taught fifty years later. £12.50 Oxford Theological Monographs

The Works of John Wesley

Volume 25, Letters 1, 1721–1739

Edited by Frank Baker

'This book is a triumph of scholarship and editing, and a major breakthrough in Wesleyan studies. Woe betide any academic library which fails to invest in a copy. Telford's edition served its generation, but Professor Frank Baker has produced such a thorough work that almost any book, article, lecture or student essay about Wesley's earlier years will need its help. Apart from its importance in biography and to church history, this is a marvellous book to browse in.' The Churchman. £35 The Oxford Edition of the Works of John Wesley

Reasonable Belief

A Survey of the Christian Faith

Anthony T. Hanson and Richard P. C. Hanson

This book sets out to preserve the great central constitutive truths of Christianity while presenting them in such a way as to suggest that they are relevant to twentieth-century society and not irretrievably involved with an obsolete view of the world. Both authors are Anglican and on several issues write as Anglicans, but their beliefs about the essence of the Christian faith should be of interest and concern to Christians of all traditions. £8.50 paper covers £3.95

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the Editor, Professor H. D. Lewis, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
