

THE AMERICAN POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION

PERSONNEL SERVICE

The American Political Science Association's Personnel Service operates as a clearinghouse, bringing together political scientists seeking positions and prospective employers. Registration in the service is open to members of the Association and to Political Science Departments. Membership in the Service, which includes a subscription to the monthly Newsletter, is $6.00 per year. Membership in the Credential Referral Service of the Personnel Service is an additional $8.00.

NEWSLETTER

A Newsletter, listing openings for political scientists including teaching, administrative and research openings, is mailed monthly to all Personnel Service members. Positions are listed by institution with a brief description of each opening.

CREDENTIAL REFERRAL SERVICE

A file will be maintained at the Association office for all members of the Credential Referral Service. This file will include a resumé, a dissertation abstract and/or a list of publications, and up to three letters of reference for each member. Referrals are made upon the request of a member or of an institution.

EMPLOYERS USING THE SERVICE

The Association's Council has adopted a policy that it is a professional obligation of all political science departments to list publicly all vacancies in the APSA Personnel Service Newsletter for which they are recruiting except those vacancies at the associate and full professor levels which departments expect to fill from among people known to them.

There is no cost to the institution listing its vacancies with the Service. Forms for listing openings in the Newsletter are available from the Personnel Service.

Professional Placement Service 1971 Annual Meeting

(September 7—11, 1971)

A Professional Placement Service will be available to members of the American Political Science Association attending the Chicago meeting. The service will be located in the East Hall of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Although sponsored by APSA, this Service is entirely separate from APSA's Personnel Service and requires separate registration.

A file of applicants seeking employment will be available for review by employers, and descriptions of position openings will be made available to applicants. Adequate facilities for personal interviews will be provided.

If you plan to attend the Conference and utilize the Placement Service, please complete and mail the form below as soon as possible but no later than August 1, 1971. Applicant and/or employer order forms will be forwarded to you upon receipt of your request.

Pre-Convention registration is strongly recommended. Employers and applicants filing in advance of the convention will receive expedited service.

The International Political Science Association Invitation to Membership

The International Political Science Association welcomes political scientists as members. The Association, founded in 1949, is composed of three categories of members: individuals, institutions and national associations.

Membership in the Association of $10.00 a year entitles members to receive the Newsletter giving information about IPSA activities and meetings; to purchase material published under IPSA auspices—including the International Bibliography of Political Science, published annually by Stevens in London and sets of papers submitted at IPSA meetings at reduced cost; and to register at IPSA meetings at lower rates.

Individual members who pay a higher membership fee of $12.00 a year are, in addition, entitled to receive either the International Political Science Abstracts published quarterly by Basil Blackwell at Oxford or the International Social Science Journal, the quarterly organ of the Department of Social Sciences of UNESCO. To join the Association send your name and check to the International Political Science Association, 27 rue Saint-Guillaume, Paris 7e, France.

GRANTS FOR ASIAN POLITICAL SCIENTISTS

The American Political Science Association again has received from The Asia Foundation a small grant for encouraging closer relations between Asian and American political scientists. The funds will be used in three ways:

- 1) To enable Asian political scientists to become members of The American Political Science Association for a one-year period at greatly reduced rates. Membership includes subscription to The American Political Science Review and PS. To be eligible, applicants must reside in one of the Asian countries listed below.
- 2) To enable libraries, university departments, and research institutes in Asia, who have heretofore been unable to do so, to subscribe to The American Political Science Review at greatly reduced rates.
- 3) To supplement travel expenses of Asian political scientists who are in the United States and who wish to attend meetings of The American Political Science Association. The next meeting will be held September 7-11, 1971 in the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago.

(Applicants must be at least at the graduate student level and may come from any of the following Asian countries: Afghanistan, Burma, Cambodia, Ceylon, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Laos, Malaysia, Nepal, Pakistan, the Philippines, the Ryukyus, the Republic of China (Taiwan), Thailand, and Vietnam. Applicants who have not previously received grants will be given first consideration.

Application forms may be obtained from The American Political Science Association, 1537 New Hampshire Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.)

CHANGING YOUR ADDRESS?

If you are planning a move, please fill in the form below and return it to the American Political Science Association, 1527 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Address changes should be received at the Association by the 5th of the month to be included in the monthly update of the Association mailing list.

Structural Change and Economic Policy in Israel

by Howard Pack

In its first twenty years, Israel has rapidly transformed its relatively underdeveloped economy to one which, by the late 1960s, was at a level similar to some of the nations of Western Europe. Howard Pack explores some of the major dimensions of this growth and then seeks to identify particular aspects of government policy that account for it. He analyzes the growth of productivity for the entire economy as well as particular sectors, giving special attention to the impact of the country's high level of formal education and large-scale immigration.

Government and Economic Development

edited by Gustav Ranis

Government affects the course of economic development in a number of ways—through the specific societal goals it sets or reflects, through its participation in directly productive activity, through the quantity and quality of its controls over the private sector, and through its role as fiscal agent on both the tax and expenditure sides. The Economic Growth Center at Yale University sponsored a conference in 1968 on this general subject, and the papers presented are now brought together in this volume. The overall organization of the book covers the following major governmental functions—the government as goal setter, as producer, as regulator, and as fiscal agent—with a concluding section of comparative studies.

metropolitan politics

A Reader

Second Edition

Michael N. Danielson

Princeton University

With more than half of the material new, this collection of readings analyzes the political systems of cities, suburbs, and metropolitan areas. Emphasis is placed on the inter-relationship between the process of urban growth, change and the distribution and use of political influence, and governmental authority in urban America.

Danielson has revised and up-dated this book, reflecting the rapid changes and growing interest in urban life occurring in the past five years since the book was first published. The basic organizational structure of the successful first edition has been retained, but the contents have been reorganized and two new chapters have been added: "Centralization and Decentralization in the City," and "The Politics of Metropolitan Reform." Greater emphasis is placed on racial and ethnic factors in urban politics, as well as on politics in the older cities.

The readings vary in scope and content and consider many cities across the United States. The articles are interesting and exciting and pertinent to the problems which are so apparent to anyone who knows the city. The book provides a core of material essential to a study of metropolitan government. Metropolitan Politics, Second Edition is suited for use in courses on urban and metropolitan politics, state and local government, and in American government courses which treat urban problems.

A Comparative Analysis

Second Edition

Herbert Jacob

Northwestern University

Kenneth N. Vines

State University of New York at Buffalo

This well-received and highly acclaimed book on state politics, in use since 1965, has been almost completely rewritten and is scheduled to appear in time for the Fall semester. While retaining the emphasis on comparative analysis and on the quality of writing, both strong features of the first edition, the authors have strengthened its effectiveness for classroom use.

Jacob/Vines was the first book to utilize a comparative approach in the leading policies of state government. It was among the few books to give substantial coverage to policies, interest groups, and participation. Each chapter was written by an acknowledged expert in the field, and incorporates the most effective and modern methods and research. The new edition offers a broader scope by bringing in state public administration and a chapter on policy innovation in the states. Politics in the American States continues to be a pacesetter, and a book to use in your State and Local Government or American Government courses.

the limits of coercive diplomacy

Laos, Cuba, Vietnam

Alexander L. George

Stanford University

David K. Hall

Stanford University

William E. Simons

Colonel, United States Air Force

Since World War II and the Bomb, the avoidance of a big war by threatening a small war has been a primary international "bargaining tool" of the United States. This timely book, written by an expert team of political scientists and political strategists, provides the first systematic analysis and evaluation of the heretofore ill-defined, poorly understood strategy of such coercive diplomacy. Case studies dealing with Laos, Cuba, and Vietnam point out the uses and limitations of this strategy. In addition, the study demonstrates how the special perspectives of the historian and those of the political scientist can be combined in order to draw the diverse lessons of history into a framework that can be used by policy-makers and students.

the field of nations

New Approaches to International Relations

Nigel Forward

Civil Service Department, Whitehall

There are many theories claiming to have the power to illuminate the process of international relations, including interaction analysis, the comparative study of nations, and foreign policy analysis. The Field of Nations identifies these scientific approaches and subjects them to critical appraisal; game theory, communication theory, dynamic bargaining theories from economics and learning theories from psychology are all examined, sometimes with notably negative conclusions. Mr. Forward provides an analysis of a real situation (the Cuban Missile Crisis) as well as an imaginary one, in order to expand upon his theoretical analysis.

untangling the cold war

A Strategy for Testing Rival Theories

William A. Gamson

University of Michigan

Andre Modigliani

Harvard University

The authors of Untangling the Cold War describe, on the basis of a daily monitoring of Cold War events, the interaction between the Soviet and Western coalitions between 1946 and 1963. Rather than interweaving description and interpretation into a running account, the authors separate them. They use their descriptive data to examine various theories of the Cold War interaction and to determine which theory explains the observed sequence of actions and reactions. The study provides a general strategy for testing rival theories about the goals and perceptions of parties in a dyadic conflict, a strategy that can be used to understand other hostile interactions.

process and power in soviet foreign policy

Vernon V. Aspaturian

Pennsylvania State University

A comprehensive account of how ideology, domestic interests and power have been processed into Soviet foreign policy over time. Half of the selections were written by Professor Aspaturian whose scholarship in the field of Soviet politics provides a unifying and systematic framework for the book, with amplification from the writings of other scholars. The book comprehensively deals with the whole range of Soviet foreign policy, by relating (1) current policy to past Soviet behavior; (2) theory and ideology to action; (3) policy formulation to execution and administration; (4) internal social pressures to factional conflict to foreign policy; (5) foreign policy to diplomacy; (6) the World Communist Movement to Soviet foreign policy and diplomacy.

liberty, equality, and revolution

in Alexis de Tocqueville

Irving M. Zeitlin

Washington University

Irving Zeitlin's short, inexpensive paperback is a critical examination of de Tocqueville's sociological ideas put into their historical context. His intellectual position is clarified by relating his thought and values to the most significant political and social events of his time. A large portion of the study is devoted to a systematic comparison with Karl Marx that affords the student an excellent opportunity to explore their respective responses to the revolutionary events of their time.

The authors scrutinize the tax reform legislation of 1969 and expose the loopholes left by those halfway measures.

"Not only did/the Tax Reform Act of 1969/do little or nothing to attack the major loopholes, but it opened some new ones. Messrs. Hertslet's Commercial Treaties is a valuable serial publication of important British documents. It includes "treaties and conventions between Great Britain and foreign powers," and "laws, decrees, orders in council, etc., concerning the same, so far as they relate to commerce and navigation, slavery, extradition, nationality, copyright, postal matters, etc."

Publication of Hertslet's began in 1827 and continued regularly through 1925 (volume 31) when the British Foreign Office incorporated it in British and Foreign State Papers. Its material is principally that of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, but some papers are of an earlier date. Hertslet's nearly one hundred year scope and breadth of coverage make it indispensable to historians, in particular.

This ten volume edition reproduces four pages of the original 31-volume set to each page of the reprint, thus reducing the bulk of the set and facilitating its storage and handling. This new format makes it possible to offer the complete Hertslet's Commercial Treaties at a lower price, but in no way decreases legibility.

CONTENDING THEORIES OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

James E. Dougherty, St. Joseph's College (Phila.), and Robert L. Pfaltzgraff, Jr.,
Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University

■ This important new book represents both an overview and a synthesis of international relations theory. The major theories from ancient times to the present are examined, though the authors deal principally with theory-building efforts since 1950. Extensive discussion is given to theories of conflict, war and revolution, from Aristotle to Mao, Giap, Guevara, Debray, and Fanon. Pacifism, imperialism, balance of power, realist theory, man-milieu relationships, international systems theory, theories of international integration, decision-making, theories of conflict and deterrence, disarmament and arms control, are all presented in their historical context.

On July 30, 1959, the Press published the first volume in the Harvard East Asian Series, emanating from the East Asian Research Center at Harvard University. In the succeeding years we have been honored to publish 60 of the Center's books; others are currently on press. Additionally, the Press distributes for the East Asian Research Center a distinguished paperbound series, the Harvard East Asian Monographs.

Harvard University Press is proud of this association with outstanding Asian scholars and their works. As this listing of recent titles vividly demonstrates, the Press is thoroughly committed to publishing in a field of scholarship that daily grows more important to world peace and understanding.

AMERICAN POLITICAL LIFE: An Introduction to U. S. Government

By Martin Birnbach, San Jose State College

one

Designed as a core text for introductory courses in American government, American Political Life proceeds from the context of American social institutions and the "unwritten Constitution" of our moral, religious, and intellectual heritage. The current functioning of our political institutions is examined to reveal unsettling discrepancies between promise and performance, between the letter of the law and the spirit in which it is administered and observed. Historical background is combined with the impact of recent and foreseeable political events and trends in this critical inquiry.

THE AMERICAN POLITICAL SYSTEM: Notes and Readings, Revised

Edition

two

Edited by Bernard E. Brown, City University of New York, and John C. Wahlke, State University of New York at Stony Brook

Thoroughly revised, this supplementary text for introductory courses in American government retains the popular basic structure of the original edition, while giving greater attention to the intensification of ideological conflict in American politics. The selections in this new Revised Edition provide the student with a representative collection of writings on the American political system, rather than a single approach to the subject matter. In addition, the systematic organization of the material leads the student to explore all important aspects of the American political experience.

THE FOUNDATIONS OF POLITICAL ANALYSIS: Empirical and Normative

By Eugene J. Meehan, University of Missouri (St. Louis)

The central focus of this new book by Professor Meehan is the relation between human needs and the instruments that can be used to satisfy them. Its purpose is to enable the student to criticize both knowledge claims and normative choices by reference to empirical consequences—particularly in social science although the same instruments are needed for any systematic attempt to cope with the environment.

HANDBOOKS FOR RESEARCH IN POLITICAL BEHAVIOR

SURVEY RESEARCH

by Charles H. Backstrom and Gerald D. Hursh

Widely adopted for classroom use, this handbook provides a complete view of the mechanics of survey research. Chapters are devoted to each step of the survey: planning, drawing the sample, writing the questions, designing the questionnaire, setting up and coordinating the field work, and processing the data. The authors draw on their extensive experience to produce an introduction to political surveying which is at the same time detailed and nontechnical.

ELITE AND SPECIALIZED INTERVIEWING

by Lewis Anthony Dexter

From his virtually unique experience in the field of elite interviewing, the author has distilled a number of recommendations about the mechanics of the interview process: how to approach a prospective subject, how to conduct the interview, and how to record it. He investigates the effects that the interviewer himself has on the person being interviewed and on his responses.

DATA PROCESSING APPLICATIONS TO POLITICAL RESEARCH SECOND EDITION

by Kenneth Janda

This handbook is designed as an introduction to the use of modern data processing in political research. Particular attention is paid to ways in which information can be recorded, organized, and manipulated.

The second edition presents new information on advances in machine technology, taking into account the new generation of computers as well as developments in storage devices and time-sharing systems.

Recent and forthcoming—

The Structure of Canadian Government

J. R. Mallory

This volume offers a detailed and critical discussion of the legal framework and organization of Canadian government, concerning itself not with the political behavior of Canadians but with the formal institutions by which political aims are realized and viewing the components of government together in order to illustrate how the state has adapted its constitution to a federal system.

The British General Election of 1970

David Butler and Michael Pinto-Duschinsky

The Nuffield election studies, covering every British election since 1945, are unique in the literature on British politics. Like preceding volumes, the 1970 report provides complete analyses of the course of events before and during the election, of party strategies, of the conduct of the mass media, and of the final outcome. Among new features are a special study of the nationalist impact in Scotland, a detailed discussion of party speeches and literature, and consideration of what census data can reveal about constituencies.

Administrative Politics and Social Change

Louis C. Gawthrop

An extended essay designed to provide the student with a basic understanding of the nature of the administrative process in our federal government and the ways in which administration is integrated into our overall governmental system. The discussion is almost exclusively contemporary, although basic administrative concepts are introduced and traditional governmental patterns described and discussed. The framework of the book, however, encompasses selected contemporary policy problems in order to illustrate the role of public administration during a period of rapid social change.

State Politics in the United States

Kenneth T. Palmer

A survey of contemporary politics in American state governments. Using a systems approach, the book discusses the various state political environments, the inputs of state politics, state decision-making agencies, and state public politics. The volume draws upon current theoretical research in the field and offers the student analytic tools and concepts with which to approach his study of state politics and with which to compare the political systems of different states.

NEW FROM YALE

Polyarchy

Participation and Opposition

by Robert A. Dahl

Given a regime in which the opponents of the government cannot openly and legally organize into political parties in order to oppose the government in free and fair elections, what conditions favor or impede a transformation into a regime in which they can? This is the question to which Robert Dahl addresses himself in this new and important study of democracy in theory and in action. He identifies seven sets of conditions which he sees as favoring polyarchy and concludes with some tentative ideas on the implications of his analysis for strategies of change, particularly as they might affect U.S. foreign policy. $7.95

Plan and Market in Yugoslav Economic Thought

by Deborah D. Milenkovitch

Can a socialist state decentralize and still remain socialist? This is a real question in Yugoslavia, which started to reform its centrally planned model fifteen years earlier than other East European countries and has gone further in expanding the scope of market relations than other socialist countries have even contemplated. Mrs. Milenkovitch analyzes the Yugoslav experience and raises the intriguing question whether the changes are specific to Yugoslavia or whether there are common forces which will compel other socialist countries to follow suit. $10.00

Nullity and Revision

The Review and Enforcement of International Judgments and Awards

by W. Michael Reisman

The process of resolving international disputes by authoritative decisions and bringing such decisions and future conduct into harmony with each other is a problem of the utmost importance. Adapting the policy-oriented framework of Myres McDougal and Harold Lasswell, the author discusses the entire subject of international arbitration and decision. Mr. Reisman develops a set of sequential heuristic models, which enable the international decision-maker to orient himself in the flow of pre-decision, decision, and post-decision events, and permit him to formulate the most effective decision. $25.00

The Autobiography of an Unknown South African

Naboth Mokgatle

"To read this book is to know, not only intellectually, but in one's very bones, what it was to be a young Black man in South Africa in the early years of this century. The life of Mokgatle is a fascination in itself. . . . Mokgatle has a natural flair for storytelling. His language is simple and dignified, and yet enlivened by a curious influence from his native idiom that renders it at once oddly naive and yet penetrating, perceptive, and vivid."—Donald Heiney

The Indian ArmyIts Contribution to the Development of a Nation

Stephen P. Cohen

The book is not a history of the Indian Army, but an interpretation of that history in the light of contemporary approaches to nation-building and developmental theory. The author explains how the British created an army that not only served them well, but was also able to survive the stresses of nationalism, partition, and the departure of the colonial power.

The Politics of City Revenue

Arnold Meltsner

Seeking to shed light on how city officials cope with their revenue headaches, the author investigates how officials obtain financial resources in Oakland, California, a typical city where fiscal resources dwindle as social problems escalate. He examines the realities and the myths surrounding such actual and potential revenue sources as business licenses, user charges, and property and payroll taxes. POLICE

American society in the 1970's is up against seemingly insoluble problems; not least among these problems is the role and responsibilities of its police. ARNO PRESS will shortly release a unique collection of materials providing historical and socio-logical perspective on America's police. ARNO's multi-volume collection consists of the reports and hearings of official commissions, studies of social scientists, exposes by police critics, and works in which police officers themselves discuss the functioning of the police in our society. Classics in the literature of police and the administration of criminal justice, they range in time from the 1840's to the 1960's, and survey a broad spectrum of material related to the police. Previously out-of-print and generally unavailable, these materials will serve the needs of scholars in law and the social sciences, police and other public administrators, and those interested in the serious study of law enforcement. Three collections of additional material supplement THE POLICE IN AMERICA: The Police in Great Britain; The Proceedings of the Annual Conventions of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (1893-1930); and Report and Proceedings of the Senate Committee Appointed to Investigate the Police Department of the City of New York (The Lexow Committee Report).

NEW Books from MARKHAM

INTRODUCTION TO INTERNATIONAL POLITICS

A Theoretical Overview

by WILLIAM D. COPLIN

This text is organized around concepts and theories which describe the major features of international politics. The first section focuses on the actors in international politics. This is followed by a section on interactions. The final part deals with the international political system as a whole. The book emphasizes comparative foreign policy analysis and includes substantial discussion of inter-governmental organizations; economic, social, ecological, and legal background; diplomacy, international law and collective problem-solving among states; international bargaining; history of the international political system; and trends of the future. Propositional outlines of the chapters and bibliographic essays are also included. Instructors Guide by James Harf.

A MULTI-METHOD INTRODUCTION TO INTERNATIONAL POLITICS

Observation, Explanation and Prescription

edited by WILLIAM D. COPLIN

and CHARLES KEGLEY

A collection of readings with an extensive introductory chapter and introductions to each of the other chapters in which the authors discuss the basic methodological problems of international relations research. A concluding original chapter by the editors places the collected readings in a comparative perspective. The volume is intended for introductory courses in international politics and is designed to serve two purposes: 1) to illustrate the various approaches to the study of international phenomena and 2) to provide an overview of the essential substantive features of contemporary international politics.

TWO READERS FOR CONTEMPORARY POLITICS

POLITICAL DEVELOPMENT AND SOCIAL CHANGE Second Edition

By JASON L. FINKLE, Univ. of Michigan and RICHARD W. GABLE,
Univ. of California at Davis

This is a thorough revision of the most comprehensive book in the field. There are 46 selective readings with connective commentaries on the contemporary process of political development and social change in Asia, Africa, and Latin America. It retains its conceptual framework for analyzing political development and its relationship to other societal change. A new section on political stability, violence, and revolution has been added. Plus more empirical and quantitative research, more material employing historical analysis, more research based on anthropology and less formal emphasis on the systems approach as a mode of inquiry.

CONTEMPORARY INTERNATIONAL POLITICS: Introductory Readings

By BRUCE L. SANDERS and ALAN C. DURBIN, both of Macomb County
Community College

This book of readings has been edited to capture greater meaning for introductory students. Each reading is pared down to the authors' major thesis and supporting explanation. For each topic there are two articles of opposing viewpoints plus one or two more representing consensus. Many prominent scholars in international relations are included—Kenneth W. Thompson, Raymond Aron, K. J. Holsti, Georges W. Landau, Inis Claude, Hans J. Morgenthau, Morton A. Kaplan, Erich Fromm, Wolfgang Friedmann, Richard Rosecrance, Louis J. Halle, and more. A correlation chart correlates chapters with nearly all current international relations texts.

CONTROVERSIES

From ALDINE·ATHERTON

Atherton Controversies in Political Science are a series of explosive, forthright books that illuminate the vital issues of our era. Each Controversy highlights the conflicting scholarly viewpoints on a controversial subject. Each is edited by an expert who, in his introduction, establishes the basis for argument, outlines the issues, and sets up the ground rules for the conflict to follow. The body of the book presents the most important contrasting views on the subject. Controversies are available clothbound at $7.95 each, and paperbound, for classroom adoption, at $2.95 each.

CONFLICT: Violence and Nonviolence

Joan V. Bondurant, editor, in association with Margaret W. Fisher

Is there force other than violence that can be used not only as a defensive measure, but also as a moderating offensive strategy? This and similar questions about human conflict are considered by 13 leading scholars in this volume. The authors weigh the claims of violence, nonviolence, and symbolic violence as means of conducting conflict. Approx. 200 pp.

HEGEL'S POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY

Walter Kaufmann, editor

This volume brings together ten essays by six authors who present sharply conflicting interpretations of the nature of Hegel's views and the quality of his influence. Here are point-by-point confrontations on Hegel's philosophy of the state and his ideas about history and war, nationalism and liberty. Never before have these issues been joined in a comparable fashion in a single volume. 179 pp.

DECLINE OF IDEOLOGY?

M. Rejai, editor

Since the early 1950's, the "decline of ideology" hypothesis has commanded a great deal of attention in the intellectual community. The controversy has taken both empirical and polemical turns. This book concentrates on the empirical literature, offering both original papers and reprints of outstanding studies by prominent scholars. The papers were chosen to give full play to novelty of material and diversity of locale. Approx. 200 pp.

THE MILITARY AND MODERNIZATION

Henry Bienen, editor

Are today's armed forces exercising greater influence than before in policy-making? If so, is this a temporary or an enduring trend? This book provides a broad perspective on the controversy over the political role of the military in modern society, particularly in the developing nations of Asia, Africa, and Latin America. Approx. 200 pp.

From ALDINE·ATHERTON

POLITICAL SOCIALIZATION

Edward S. Greenberg, editor

Focusing on the forces underlying the headlines of our day, this Controversy examines the processes and outcomes of political socialization—the ways in which an individual acquires the attitudes, beliefs, and values of the political culture surrounding him and assumes his role as a citizen within that political framework. The book vividly points out the contradiction between the optimism found in the traditional literature in this field and the reality of present-day convulsions in the social order. 199 pp.

PARLIAMENTS: Change or Decline?

Gerhard Loewenberg, editor

This Controversy deals with Parliament (the generic term for what is also known as legislature, Congress, assembly, diet, Knesset, etc.), what it has been and is, what it does and should do, and what may become of it. European as well as American scholars outline the history of parliaments since their appearance in the Middle Ages, and scrutinize the role and operations of specific modern parliamentary bodies. Approx. 200 pp.

Other outstanding new texts from Aldine·Atherton—write today for examination copies to consider for fall courses.

BUREAUCRACY AND REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT

William A. Niskanen

This is the first book ever to attempt to treat government bureaucracy from the standpoint of alternative methods to efficiency. Niskanen develops an original and elegant mathematical model proving that efficiency can be gained by commissioning private agencies and individuals to perform large government functions. He shows that licensed private corporations could, for example, deliver mail, fight a war, run a school more efficiently than the present governmental agencies. The author is Assistant Director for Evaluation in the federal Office of Management and Budget. Approx. 256 pp. $7.75.

PRIVACY: Nomos XIII

J. Roland Pennock and John W. Chapman, editors

Never before has a society had the technology to make privacy the scarce commodity it has become. Truly interdisciplinary, this book includes essays on this timely and important topic from the fields of anthropology, sociology, psychiatry, law, philosophy, and political science. The book collects papers delivered at the 1968 meetings of the American Society for Political and Legal Philosophy, as well as others that were contributed later. 255 pp. $7.95.

TRUTH AND POWER Essays of a Decade, 1960-1970

Hans J. Morgenthau. This provocative portrait of a decade of world affairs, viewed through the eyes of one of America's foremost political analysts, is divided into three sections: "The Philosophy," which covers such major themes as the conflict between seekers of truth and seekers of power, the right to dissent, and the revisionist view of the Cold War; "The Men," which presents profiles of major figures of the 1960's, including John Kennedy, DeGaulle, Khrushchev, Johnson, Fulbright, Robert Kennedy, and Eugene McCarthy; and "The Issues," which analyzes the problems that have dominated the past ten years, such as international cooperation, the changing Communist world, the Middle East conflict, and, above all, Vietnam.

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY SINCE WORLD WAR II

Fourth Revised Edition

John Spanier. This classic book, the leading text in its field through four earlier editions, has now been revised and updated to reflect recent scholarship and the developments of the past two years. From a penetrating account of the breakdown of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. alliance at the end of World War II to a thoughtful interpretation of the war in Indochina, this fascinating analysis unravels the threads of changing American policy in the postwar period.

1971 ca. 320 pp. $3.95 paper

RACE AND POLITICS IN NEW YORK CITY Five Cases in Policy-Making

Edited by Jewel Bellush and Stephen M. David. This book focuses on the mobilization of New York City's black communities as they moved to shape their demands in the key policy areas of education, housing, welfare, health, and police services. While concentrating on specific Lindsay policies, each case study provides a careful review of the Wagner period, thus making it possible to compare the political and administrative styles of both mayors. Perhaps most important for serious students of urban affairs, each study has been designed to test the validity of the constructs and conclusions of the pluralist school.

1971 216 pp. $2.95 paper

COUNTERBUDGET A Blueprint for Changing National Priorities, 1971-76

Prepared by the National Urban Coalition. Edited by Robert F. Benson and Harold Wolman. Foreword by Sol Linowitz. In recent years, there has been a growing debate over how best to match our federal budget with our national priorities. There is little doubt that we need a thorough reassessment of how the government allocates its dollar resources, but so far only piecemeal analyses have been advanced. Now the staff of the National Urban Coalition has prepared a comprehensive five-year budget—a peacetime "counter-budget"—that would allocate dollars to pressing needs. This book explains how, without compromising national security, federal spending can be redirected to attack effectively the social and economic ills of the nation.

1971 288 pp. $2.95 paper

SUPERMAN AND COMMON MEN Freedom, Anarchy, and the Revolution

Benjamin R. Barber. In the words of the author, "This is a contentious book. It contends that anarchism is the product of a Superman complex and impedes significant change, that men can be forced to be free, that tolerance ought not always to be tolerated, that revolution can only be the work of common men who speak for the majority." Playwright, political philosopher, and iconoclast, Benjamin Barber writes about the revolution in our time with high literary style, sympathetic insight, and scathing wit. "Mr. Barber is that rare phenomenon, a scholar who writes with passion and lucidity, and who moreover is an original thinker. His essays in political philosophy will not please either traditional liberals or the new brand of anarchists. This is all the more reason why they should be widely read and carefully considered."—George Lichtheim. "This is truly an intellectually exciting work."—Library Journal.

The Jeffersonian Crisis

COURTS AND POLITICS IN THE YOUNG REPUBLIC

By RICHARD E. ELLIS, University of Virginia. In 1801 the struggle for control of the courts became so intense that it threatened to reverse much earlier constitutional development. Professor Ellis sets forth the dimensions of the conflict, drawing a revealing picture of American attitudes toward the judiciary and the developing court system. He emphasizes the nature of the political influence upon the constitutional issues. $9.75

The Revival of American Socialism

SELECTED PAPERS OF THE SOCIALIST SCHOLARS CONFERENCE

Edited by GEORGE FISCHER, Richmond College, City University of New York. In the past few years there has been a revival of American socialism. The contributors to this stimulating volume, who represent a wide spectrum of Left thought in the United States, explore such topics as recent trends in American society, a white-collar "new working class," aspects of neo-Marxism, and what may lie in the future for capitalism and socialism.

The Russian Revolution of 1917

CONTEMPORARY ACCOUNTS

Edited by DIMITRI VON MOHRENSCHILDT, Dartmouth College. Twenty-three original accounts and analyses of the Russian Revolution—by such participants as Lenin, Trotsky, Chernov, Tseretelli, Golovin, Miliukov, Kerensky, Stalin, and General Wrangel—appear in this volume, together with the reminiscences of ordinary citizens who witnessed the events. This collection confronts the reader with the conflicting parties and forces in the upheaval, and allows him to evaluate the testimonies for himself.

Italy Chooses Europe

By F. ROY WILLIS, University of California at Davis. The whole course of post-war Italy's integration into the western European political and economic community is surveyed in this new work which begins with a history of her foreign relations from 1945 to 1966. Professor Willis describes her involvement in the European Coal and Steel Community, NATO, Euratom, and the Common Market, showing how, despite the initial opposition of the country's large Communist Party, Italy was able to effect an economic recovery that has rivalled Germany's. 4 tables. 1 map.

The Union of Democratic Control in British Politics During the First World War

By MARVIN SWARTZ, University of Massachusetts, Amherst. This book is a study in the interrelationship between domestic politics and foreign policy. The Union of Democratic Control not only participated in the decline of the Liberal Party and the rise of Labour but also had a significant impact on the debate over war aims. Using much previously unpublished material, Dr. Swartz describes the Union's organization, its relations with the major political parties of the left, and the reaction to it from the political right and the British government. 5 plates.

The Finance of the Commune of Siena 1287-1355

By WILLIAM M. BOWSKY, University of California, Davis. The premise of this book is that public finance was the lifeblood of the Italian city-states. Based primarily on archival sources, this volume is the first modern analysis of the fiscal structure and administration of an Italian city-state in the late Middle Ages and early Renaissance. The role of voluntary loans in communal finance is studied, and also examined are such themes as the underlying fiscal assumptions and values of the government, and the question of whether such a government has a coherent fiscal policy or simply responded ad hoc to fiscal exigencies. 3 plates, 3 maps.

Public Law and Political Change in Kenya

A STUDY OF THE LEGAL FRAMEWORK OF GOVERNMENT
FROM COLONIAL TIMES TO THE PRESENT

By Y. P. GHAI, and J. P. W. B. MCAUSLAN, University of Warwick. The conflict between economic exploitation of, and benevolent paternalism towards, the Africans in Kenya is examined in this book to show how a dual and inequitable system of law was created and sustained. In the second half of this book, the authors trace how the African government of Kenya has altered, adapted, or continued this legal legacy.

The Future of Law in a Multicultural World

ADDA B. BOZEMAN

Discussing the unique cultures of the Islamic Middle East, sub-Saharan Africa, Indianized Asia, and China, Mrs. Bozeman attacks the supposition that world unity can be achieved through the application of Western ideals of international law and organization. "This brilliant book should have a sobering effect on anyone who is trapped in the cage of assuming that universalized rhetoric implies universalized conduct."—Harold D. Lasswell

The New Politicians of Fifth-Century Athens

W. ROBERT CONNOR

Athenian politics after the death of Pericles relied on direct appeals to the people rather than on bonds of friendship, the traditional source of political support. Hundreds of librarians in more than thirty countries are helping researchers in the political, behavioral and social sciences reduce literature research time. From days... to minutes.
With the Universal Reference System.

More than 35,000 titles are covered in the 10-volume basic library and annual supplements. Papers. Articles. Books. And other political works. Issued by some 2400 publishers and 800 journals, domestic and foreign. With the information systematically indexed, organized, readily accessible. And continuously updated with annual supplements (about 5-6000 new items are added each year) through 1970. So the researcher will be able to quickly uncover more relevant titles - current as well as retrospective - than would be possible by any other method.

Politics and the International System

—AN INTRODUCTION—

KEITH R. LEGG and JAMES F. MORRISON, University of Florida. This is an "anti-text." A short, theoretical introduction to international politics, it is designed to be used in correlation with readings that are suggested in the wide-ranging chapter bibliographies (largely of paperbacks). Comparative in approach, the book relates the study of politics at many different levels and emphasizes the general concept of "systems" and the application of conflict theory to the study of international politics. Using specific situations to clarify and define relationships, the authors develop a framework for a viable theory of international politics. January, 1971. Paper. 369 pp.; $3.95.

Conflict and Decision Making

AN INTRODUCTION TO POLITICAL SCIENCE

PAUL H. CONN, Michigan State University. Applies a model (political conflict and its resolution) through which all political phenomena can be analyzed, thereby providing a consistent organizational framework for the introductory course, while conveying to the student a sense of the fascinatingly complex and dynamic nature of political systems. The text examines the ways conflicts arise, the resources necessary to engage in conflict, the dynamics of conflict, and how legal and institutional structures respond to conflict situations. Modern examples, current problems, and issues relevant to the politically concerned student are stressed, with historical examples and classical concepts carefully woven into the text. March, 1971. Paper. 317 pp.; $4.95. Instructor's Manual.

Coming Fall, 1971!

STABILITY AND CHANGE IN CONGRESS

BARBARA HINCKLEY, Cornell University. With emphasis on recent research, this brief text provides a thorough and integrated treatment of the major areas of congressional study—elections, congressional-constituency relations, norms, leadership, the committee, and policy making. For the undergraduate, the book can be used as a basic or supplementary text in American Government and Legislative Behavior courses; for upper and graduate level courses, it is a concise source of up-to-date research on the subject. September, 1971. Paper. Tentative: 224 pp.; $3.95.

Coming Fall, 1971!

Conducting Political Research

E. TERRENCE JONES, University of Missouri—St. Louis. This methodology text, requiring no statistical background, discusses the primary topics of political research: research design, measurement, sampling, data collection, coding, data analysis, and statistical inference. Chapters are organized according to a typical research project; the final one, a case study in political research, demonstrates how the elements of the research project interrelate. Throughout, it is shown why certain methods are preferable in various situations. September, 1971. Paper. Tentative: 384 pp.; $6.95.

You Mean I Can Get $50,000 of TIAA Life Insurance for LESS THAN $100?

That's what an Assistant Professor asked us when he heard about TIAA's low life insurance costs.

It's true. At his age 30 the annual premium for a 20-Year Home Protection policy providing $50,000 initial amount of insurance is $159.00. The first-year dividend, based on our current dividend scale, is $61.00, making a net payment of $98.00. Dividends, of course, are not guaranteed.

The Home Protection plan is level premium Term insurance providing its largest amount of protection initially, reducing by schedule each year to recognize decreasing insurance needs. This is just one example of the many low-cost TIAA plans available. If you need more protection for your family, ask us to mail you a personal illustration with figures for a policy issued at your age. We'll also send the Life Insurance Guide describing other TIAA policies.

ELIGIBILITY

Eligibility to apply for this or other TIAA life insurance is limited to persons employed at the time of application by a college, university, private school, or other nonprofit educational or scientific institution that qualifies for TIAA eligibility.
