Dams and Development
Transnational Struggles for Water and Power
Sanjeev Khagram

"Powerful development agencies once built big dams in the name of development progress. Since the 1980s, this became less and less possible as critics around the world mounted unprecedented challenges to the claim that big dams promote development. Sanjeev Khagram explicates the conditions under which this massive paradigm shift occurred and why the innovative World Commission on Dams emerged."

Calculating Credibility
How Leaders Assess Military Threats
Daryl G. Press

"Press demolishes the widely held belief that a state that backs down in a crisis loses credibility in the next crisis. In fact, he shows that a state's past behavior has almost no effect on how other states assess its credibility. Reputation is an overblown concept. The American foreign-policy elite should be told immediately about Press's findings."

World Religions and Democracy

edited by Larry Diamond,
Marc F. Plattner, and
Philip J. Costopoulos

Can religion be compatible with liberal democracy? World Religions and Democracy brings together insights from renowned scholars and world leaders in a provocative and timely discussion of religions' role in the success or failure of democracy. An essay by Alfred Stepan outlines the concept of "twin tolerations" and differentiation, and creates a template that can be applied to all of the religion-democracy relationships observed and analyzed throughout the volume. "Twin tolerations" means that there is a clear distinction and a mutual respect between political authorities and religious leaders and bodies. When true differentiation is accomplished, the religious sector enjoys freedom of activity and the ability to peacefully influence its members but does not wield direct political power.

Contributors: Alfred Stepan, Hahm Chaibong, Francis Fukuyama, Pratap Mehta, His Holiness the Dalai Lama, Aung San Suu Kyi, Hillel Fradkin, Daniel Philpott, Tim Shah, Robert Woodberry, Elizabeth Prodromou, Peter Berger, Abdou Filali-Ansary, Bernard Lewis, Robin Wright, Abdelwahab El-Affendi, Radwan A. Defending Democracy

Reactions to Extremism in Interwar Europe

Giovanni Capoccia

How does a democracy deal with threats to its stability and continued existence when those threats come from political parties that play the democratic game? Giovanni Capoccia studies key European nations between World Wars I and II which survived such democratic crises. The in-depth analysis of cases of difficult democratic stability such as the interwar democratic systems of Finland, Czechoslovakia, and Belgium highlights the importance of strategies of response by the incumbents in preserving democracy against strong and rising extremist parties and movements.

Terms of Inquiry

On the Theory and Practice of Political Science

James W. Davis

"Davis's work is refreshing. It begins with problems of conceptualization and does so on the basis of the 'cognitive revolution' in psychology. It remains true to the ideal of examining the variability of the categorical framework and their different trajectories, while at the same time showing that the processes are by no means random but follow a certain logic. A very important contribution."

International Relations of the Asia-Pacific

International Relations of the Asia-Pacific is an exciting journal dedicated to providing frontier knowledge and fresh insights into the major issues and developments taking place in the Asia-Pacific.

From China's accession to the WTO to America's antiterrorist war and regional power reconfiguration, from Japan's belated entry into regional politics to deepening globalisation and changing national identities, the journal debates issues from refreshingly diverging angles, supported by rigorous scholarship. It features articles from all schools of thought, and ideas that are expressed in plain and clear language.

The Smith Richardson Foundation's Junior Faculty
Research Grant Program

The Smith Richardson Foundation's International Security and Foreign Policy Program is pleased to announce its annual grant competition to support junior faculty research on American foreign policy, international relations, international security, military policy, and diplomatic and military history. The Foundation will award at least three research grants of $60,000 each to buy-out up to one year of teaching time and to underwrite research costs (including research assistance and travel). Each grant will be paid directly to, and should be administered by, the academic institution at which the junior faculty member works. Projects in military and diplomatic history are especially encouraged. Group or collaborative projects will not be considered.

Proposal Evaluation Criteria

Proposals will be evaluated based on the following criteria: (1) the relevance of potential analysis and findings to current and future foreign and security policy issues; (2) the potential of the project to innovate the field and to contribute to academic or policy literature on the chosen topic; (3) the degree to which research questions and analytical methods are well defined; (4) the degree to which the project will develop valuable new data or information through field work, archival work, or other methods; and (5) the applicant's publication record.

Eligibility

An applicant must have a Ph.D., preferably in Political Science, Public Policy, Policy Analysis, International Political Economy, or History. He or she also must hold a position as a full-time tenure-track faculty member of a college or university in the United States.

Applying

See the Foundation's website at www.srf.org for details on submission procedures.

Deadline

The Foundation must receive all Junior Faculty Research Grant proposals by July 1, 2005. Applicants will be notified of the Foundation's decision by October 31, 2005.

If you have any further questions, submit them via e-mail to plandesberg@srf.org. No phone inquiries please.
