

About our contributors

All the writers in this issue except the Project Editor and Dr Amjad-Ali are Muslims.

Chrys McVey OP

has been Project Editor for this special issue. A Catholic priest and a Dominican, he was born in the United States but has worked for much of his life in Pakistan. He is Prior Provincial of the Dominican Pakistan Province, and Editor of the theological journal Focus, published in Multan. He has long been closely associated with inter-faith dialogue.

Riffat Hassan

is currently teaching in the Religious Studies Program at the University of Louisville, Kentucky.

Farida Shaheed and Khawar Mumtaz

are both members of the Shirkat Gah Women's Resource Centre, Lahore, and members of the Human Rights Commission of Pakistan. They have both written widely on the role of women in Islam.

Hesham El-Essaway

by birth an Egyptian, and now a London medical consultant, is Chairman of the Islamic Society for the Promotion of Religious Tolerance in the UK.

Asghar Ali Engineer

is Director of the Institute of Islamic Studies, Bombay.

Charles Amjad-Ali

was born in Karachi and studied at Bonn and Princeton. He is Director of the Christian Study Centre in Rawalpindi, which exists to promote understanding between Christians and Muslims.