History of the MongolsBertold SpulerTranslated from the German by Helga Drummond*

Drawing on an extensive range of sources (Mongolian, Persian, Arabic, and Latin) Professor Spuler provides a summary political history and a more detailed cultural history of the Mongols from the beginning of the thirteenth to the middle of the fourteenth century. No other book in a European language offers a comparable account.

Form, Style, Tradition*Reflections on Japanese Art and SocietyShūichi KatoTranslated from the Japanese by John Bester*

This collection of essays by a prominent novelist, journalist, and critic of Japanese culture deals with such subjects as the quality of a particular work of art, general trends in the historical development of a genre, and the social milieu of artists and their roles in and relationships with society at large. This is the first substantive contribution in a Western language to the sociology of art in Japan.

The Pound EraHugh Kenner

This is an X-ray moving picture of the age of Pound, Eliot, Joyce, Lewis and their contemporaries—an age that was preoccupied with persistent patterns manifested in ceaseless change. The narrative centers on Pound who characterizes the anti-specialists whose art conferred on "tradition" and "permanence" a viable 20th century meaning.

The Congress Party in Rajasthan

Political Integration and Institution-Building in an Indian State

Richard Sisson

In his consideration of an important facet of modernization—party building in a changing society—Mr. Sisson focuses on the institutionalization of the Congress Party in Rajasthan. Three interrelated aspects are examined in particular: the Congress's social and political antecedents, the structure and process of organizational adaptability, and the process of conflict management and organizational integration.

Sayyid Jamāl ad-Dīn "al-Afghānī"

A Political Biography

Nikki R. Keddie

In unscrambling some of Jamāl ad-Dīn al-Afghānī's life (1838/39-1897), Mrs. Keddie shows that all previous accounts of his life rest in large part on what al-Afghānī wanted others to believe: little of what he said can be trusted. In this account the author goes back to primary sources to give us, for the first time, a clear outline of the career of this important figure in the Muslim world.

Sufis of Andalusia

The Rūh al-Quds and al-Durrat al Fākhīrah of Ibn 'Arabī

Translated with Introduction and Notes by R. W. J. Austin

These are biographical sketches of some 11th and 12th century Spanish Sufi masters (Moslem mystics) drawn from two manuscripts by the celebrated Sufi, Muhyi al-Din Ibn 'Arabī. Mr. Austin's Introduction not only describes the fundamentals of Sufism and the context of Ibn 'Arabī's life and writings; it also lends insight into the practices of eminent Sufis at a time when Islam was distinguished by their spiritual intensity.

New, Expanded Edition

Hindus of the Himalayas

Gerald D. Berreman

Since its original publication in 1963, this study has been widely recognized as an unusually informative ethnographic account of village India. The second edition contains two new features: a frank description of the problems anthropologists often encounter in the field and a chapter reviewing the changes that have occurred in the village of Sirkanda in the decade since the author completed his initial fieldwork.

Memoirs of a Russian Diplomat

Outposts of the Empire, 1893-1917

by Andrew D. Kalmykow

"Andrew Kalmykow was an archaeologist who served the Tsar's government as a diplomat in the Far, Middle, and Near East from 1893-1917. Lovingly edited by his surviving daughter, his stately and quietly flowing reminiscences of his experiences during those 24 years should reward historians, Orientalists and general readers whose tastes run toward descriptions of exotic places and elegant writing studded with acute observations. Master of 14 languages, Kalmykov had a special affinity for Persia, where he fulfilled an assignment in 1895 when he was only 25. In 1898 he was posted to Siam and helped avert a war between France and England over that tiny country. He also spent long years in Turkey and the Balkans, and his descriptions of those countries, their politics and personalities, fill a gap in historical knowledge of that period." Publishers Weekly $12.50

An Introduction to the Burmese Writing System

by D. Haigh Roop

This book is designed to present the Burmese writing system step-by-step, with reading and writing exercises on each new element as it is introduced, so that the student will gradually build up a thorough knowledge of the symbols and the ways in which they combine. It is intended to prepare the student for reading by providing a smooth transition from the Burmese sound system to its written representation. Yale Linguistic Series $5.00

COMMITTEE ON THE ECONOMY OF CHINA MONOGRAPHS

FROM ALDINE • ATHERTON

529 South Wabash Avenue

• Chicago, Ill. 60605

A series of reference books and special studies dealing with important aspects of the contemporary Chinese economy under the Communist government, edited on behalf of the Committee on the Economy of China of the Social Science Research Council by Walter Galenson, Professor of Economics, Cornell University.

NEW books in the series include:

THE FOREIGN TRADE OF MAINLAND CHINA

Feng-hwa Mah, Institute for Comparative and Foreign Area Studies, University of Washington
A timely and thorough analysis of the substance and directions of the foreign trade of China, potentially a global trading giant. Based on a large amount of information from Chinese, Russian, and Western sources, this is the first detailed study of Chinese foreign trade from 1950 to 1969. 272 pp. $9.75.

THE MACHINE-BUILDING INDUSTRY IN COMMUNIST CHINA

Chu-Yuan Cheng, Ball State University

Despite its importance, previous research on this subject has been practically nonexistent. Analyzing both quantitative and qualitative aspects of the industry, the author has amassed a wealth of information entirely from original Chinese sources. 304 pp. $9.75.

Recent books in the series include:

AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT IN CHINA, 1363-1968

Dwight H. Perkins

The first book in English to look at long-term growth in China's traditional economic sector from an economic point of view. 528 pp. $12.50.

CHINESE ECONOMIC STATISTICS: A Handbook for Mainland China

Nai-Ruenn Chen

The first comprehensive compilation of official statistics covering every aspect of the contemporary mainland Chinese economy since 1949. 640 pp. $15.00.

THE CHINESE ECONOMY UNDER COMMUNISM

Nai-Ruenn Chen and Walter Galenson

An analysis of the broad sweep of the Chinese Communist economy from a developmental point of view. 250 pp. $7.95.

TALES OF MOONLIGHT AND RAIN:

Japanese Gothic Tales

UYEDA AKINARI; TRANSLATED BY KENGI HAMADA

A collection of 9 eerie tales probing spiritual values and aberrations in a historical-traditional perspective. Based on well-known historical tales, these are retold in elegant prose, portraying the interaction of mores, superstitions and religious beliefs. $7.95

VIS AND RAMIN

EDITED AND TRANSLATED BY GEORGE MORRISON

This volume presents a prose translation of the Persian verse poem Vis o Ramin, composed in the eleventh century A.D. by Fakhr ud-Din Gurgāni. The poem bears a resemblance to the legend of Tristan and Isolde, and is one of the earliest of its kind in Persian literature, perhaps having a historical origin in the Parthian period. Although Gurgāni uses Persian poetry to embellish the tale, the atmosphere of ancient Iran is faithfully conveyed. $15.00

The Community of Oil Exporting Countries

By ZUHAYR MIKDASHI. A vital aspect of international oil operations—the collective efforts of the governments of oil-producing countries of the Middle East and Latin America to protect and promote their own interests—is covered in this well-researched and clearly-written work. The author focuses on the motives and forces behind the establishment and structure of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and describes their formal and informal relations. Given the controversial nature of the subject, his treatment is particularly notable for its balance and objectivity. $8.50

Early Buddhist Rock Temples

By VIDYA DEHEJIA. The author studies in detail the imposing cathedral-like caves of Western India in order to answer the question of their chronology. With full examination of the evidence yielded by epigraphy, numismatics, and especially palaeography, the author analyzes and compares the stylistic development of the caves in terms of architecture, sculpture, and painting. Throughout she treats them as part of the general artistic activity in India from 200 B.C. to A.D. 200. The photographic documentation, together with the author's thorough and clear analysis, offers a lucid picture of the period as a whole and a sound approach to the problems of its chronology that have perplexed scholars for years. China and Japan at War 1937-1945

The Politics of Collaboration

John Hunter Boyle. Imperial Japan and Nationalist China had good reasons not to go to war in the 1930's, since any conflict could only strengthen their mortal enemies, the Soviet Union and the Chinese Communists. Yet war came, despite both governments' strenuous efforts to bring about peace. This book describes the most ambitious of the attempts at wartime collaboration between the two nations, the Japanese-backed regional puppet governments initially set up in various parts of China in the late 1930's and ultimately consolidated in a single national collaborationist regime in Nanking under Wang Ching-wei. Doctoral Dissertations on China

A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF STUDIES
IN WESTERN LANGUAGES, 1945-1970

Compiled and edited by Leonard H. D. Gordon and Frank J. Shulman

The vast expansion of Chinese studies in the West since 1945 has resulted in an unusually large output of dissertations, of which only a limited number have yet been published in their entirety. This volume, the first bibliography ever to appear in print devoted completely to Western-language doctoral dissertations on China, Mongolia, Tibet, and overseas Chinese communities, lists 2,217 dissertations completed between 1945 and 1970 at a large number of universities in twenty-three countries.

In addition to the author's name, complete title and subtitle of the dissertation, and the university to which it was submitted, the bibliography indicates the pagination of the typescript, the location of relevant abstracts published in Dissertation Abstracts, and information on how to obtain copies. The bibliographic listing is supplemented by three indexes: an index by author, an index by institution, and a comprehensive subject index.

This volume is the first of a new series of reference publications, the Reference Series of the Association for Asian Studies, edited by Edgar Wickberg.

CHINA:

An Introduction

Lucian W. Pye

Massachusetts Institute of Technology

This timely new book introduces the student to China yesterday and China today, offering a fascinating blend of history, culture, and politics. In a vivid and impartial manner, the author explores a wide range of topics. These include a general introduction to Chinese civilization, emphasizing the cultural and institutional forces that have shaped its development; a discussion of its problems in responding to the modern world and Western influence; and a summary of current monographic research as it relates to China's history. The focus of the book, however, is on China today — its character, its people, its language, its ideology, its social problems. Communist China is placed in the context of its traditional culture and past history, and its major issues are treated in a clear and interesting style. The author explains the Cultural Revolution and sets the stage for important recent developments, including Ping-Pong diplomacy and Nixon's visit. Readable and well-balanced, this book will give the student a vivid picture of China, as it was in the past and as it is in the present.

When three people are gathered together there are at least two factions, according to a Korean proverb. In this book, Vincent S.R. Brandt reveals the conflicts and kinships he found in his year-long experience as "resident anthropologist" in a small Korean community. He discovered, for example, that groups within the village cooperate frequently, assist one another extensively, and settle nearly all their disputes effectively. This is the first major study of a Korean village to appear in English. $8.95

No. 7. HAI JUI DISMISSED FROM OFFICE

by Wu Han, translated by C.C. Huang and with an introductory essay by D.W.Y. Kwok

Hai Jui Pa-kuan, a play by the then Deputy Mayor of Peking, was first performed in 1961 by the Peking Opera Troupe. It is based on the life of Hai Jui, an exemplary official of the Ming dynasty during the sixteenth century. Wu Han's thinly veiled criticism of the Communist Party in his play and in subsequent writings led to his own dismissal and his disappearance from public life.

This translation, coming at a time when the world's attention is focused on China, will be welcomed by students and scholars of both social and political science, as well as by those interested in modern Chinese political history and literature.

160 pages, 6" × 9", 1972 paper, $2.50
