In the original publication of Klačnja et al. (2021), the authors miscoded the gender of the candidates in the conjoint experiment. As a result, the gender effect reported in Figure 1 was inverted, but none of the results discussed in the article were affected. The corrected Figure 1 is provided below:

Conjoint experiment results.

Values represent the difference in respondents' propensity for supporting a hypothetical candidate based on each vignette characteristic. Lines represent 95% confidence intervals estimated using standard errors clustered by respondent. Estimates are based on OLS regressions.

The authors are grateful to Carmen Le Foulon and Catherine Reyes-Housholder for bringing this coding error to their attention.
