Robert E. Taylor

THE ALLEGORICAL TEMPER

Harry Berger, Jr.

Mr. Berger explores the problem of allegory as a poetic rather than a didactic method, and examines Book Two of the Faerie Queene in light of his conclusions and those of recent critical theory. $5.00

PIERS PLOWMAN
AND THE SCHEME OF SALVATION

Robert Worth Frank, Jr.

This book challenges accepted explanations of Piers Plowman, and offers a completely new interpretation with especially significant bearing on the puzzling last part, Dowell, Dobet, and Dobest. $4.00

Concordia Mundi

The Career and Thought of Guillaume Postel (1510–1581)

BY WILLIAM J. BOUWSMA

This is the first integrated account of the life and activities of an important and many-sided sixteenth-century scholar and thinker. Mr. Bouwsma discusses the sources of Postel's wide-ranging thought, analyzes and interprets his ideas, and suggests his place in the context of his time. Remarkably sensitive to contemporary ideas and problems, Postel attempted to absorb them into his own view of the world and for this reason he is of exceptional interest to students of the sixteenth century. $6.50

Conrad Celtis

The German Arch-Humanist

BY LEWIS W. SPITZ

Poet, playwright, patriot, philosopher—Rabelaisian wanderer and friend of the Emperor Maximilian and the artist Dürer, Conrad Celtis was a fascinating and influential man of his day. Yet he is little known in this country. This biography—absorbing reading for both scholar and layman—brings his life and his work to English-speaking readers for the first time. $3.25
