Ana Antic is a social and cultural historian of modern Europe and a Postdoctoral Research Fellow on The Reluctant Internationalists project at Birkbeck, University of London. She completed her PhD at Columbia University. Her first monograph, Therapeutic Fascism: Experiencing the violence of the Nazi New Order in Yugoslavia, was awarded the 2015 Fraenkel Prize in Contemporary History, and is forthcoming with Oxford University Press.

David Brydan is a PhD candidate at Birkbeck College, University of London, and a former Visiting Researcher at the European University Institute, Florence. He is currently completing his doctoral thesis on the involvement of Spanish experts in forms of international health during the Franco era.

Johanna Conterio is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow at Birkbeck, University of London, on The Reluctant Internationalists project. She is an environmental, urban and medical historian of modern Russia and the Soviet Union, and the author of 'Inventing the Subtropics: An Environmental History of Sochi, 1929–1935', Kritika: Explorations in Russian and Eurasian History, 1, 16 (2015), 91–120.

Celia Donert is Lecturer in Twentieth-Century History at the University of Liverpool. Her research and teaching interests lie in contemporary European history, particularly the history of east-central Europe, communism, social movements and human rights.

Charlotte Faucher is a Temporary Lecturer in Modern French history at Queen Mary, University of London. She is a historian of late nineteenth and twentieth century Europe with particular interests in cultural relations between France, Britain and Germany as well as the history of the French community in Britain. Her doctoral thesis examines the history of the London French cultural institute (1910–1959). She has published on French cultural diplomacy in early twentieth century Britain, the London French school and its First World War origins and Franco-British cultural relations at the outbreak of the Second World War. She is currently researching the role of gender in shaping French external cultural policies in the first half of the twentieth century.

Jennifer Johnson is Assistant Professor of African History at Brown University and is currently writing a book on medicine and public health in post-colonial North Africa. She is also working on a sourcebook for African history, 1945 to the present. She is the author of The Battle for Algeria: Sovereignty, Health Care, and Humanitarianism (Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 2016). She has also published articles on the role of health care during decolonisation (International Journal for Middle East Studies) and on the limits of humanitarianism at the end of empire (edited volume, forthcoming with Cambridge University Press).

Katharina Kreuder-Sonnen is Junior Lecturer (wissenschaftliche Mitarbeiterin) at the Institute for the History of Medicine at Bonn University. She has studied modern history in Tübingen and Cracow and has recently completed her PhD thesis at the University of Giessen. Her dissertation entitled 'How to Make Microbes Travel: Circulating Bacteriological Knowledge, Polish Epidemic Regime and Biomedical Sciences, 1885–1939' examines the mobilisation of knowledge, knowledge production in global peripheries and transnational Polish history.

Christine von Oertzen published her most recent monograph, Gender, Science, Internationalism: Women's Academic Networks, with Palgrave Macmillan in 2014. She is currently working on two book projects: Science in the Cradle focuses on at-home scientific observation of infants in fin-de-siècle America. Prussia's Rise to Data Power reveals an unremarked European revolution in nineteenth-century data processing.

Francesca Piana is currently based in the Department of History, Classics and Archaeology at Birkbeck College, University of London and affiliated with The Reluctant Internationalists project. Prior to this, Francesca was a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Swiss National Science Foundation, based at Columbia University and the University of Michigan. She holds a PhD in International History and Politics from the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva. Francesca works on the history of international organisations, transnational movements, prisoners of war, refugees, women and gender in the twentieth century. She is currently completing her first book, Europe under Threat. International Humanitarianism, Prisoners of War, and Refugees, 1918–1930. She is also conducting research for her second book, tentatively entitled 'Parallel Lives': Women, Imperialism, and Humanitarianism, 1880–1950.

Jessica Reinisch is Senior Lecturer in European History and Director of MA programmes at Birkbeck, Department of History, Classics and Archaeology, and editor of Contemporary European History. She is currently leading The Reluctant Internationalists project, funded by a Wellcome Trust Investigator Award. Her latest book, The Perils of Peace: Public Health in Occupied Germany was published in 2013 by Oxford University Press and is available for free download at: <http://www.bbk.ac.uk/reluctantinternationalists/people/jessica-reinisch/>.

Bertrand Taithe is Professor of Cultural History at the University of Manchester. He is founder director of the Humanitarian and Conflict Response Institute (hcri.ac.uk), which combines a range of disciplines including history for the study of humanitarian aid and disaster relief, has been elected to the steering committee of ALNAP (Alnap.org) and is a member of the scientific committee of the think tank of MSF, CRASH. He also works closely with Save the Children and a range of other NGOs. Taithe has been writing about the history of humanitarian aid since 1997 and has published a wide range of articles and blogs on humanitarian affairs. His full range of publications and writings are available at www.historyofhumanitarianaid.com. He also edits a book series with Manchester University Press entitled Humanitarianism, Key Debates and New Approaches and is currently working on contemporary humanitarian practices and medical science in refugee camps.

Dora Vargha is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow on The Reluctant Internationalists project at Birkbeck, University of London. She completed her PhD in modern European, women's and gender history at Rutgers University in 2013. She is editor of the Central and Eastern European History of Medicine Network.

Alexander Watson is Professor of History at Goldsmiths, University of London. He previously held research fellowships at Cambridge and Warsaw Universities. He has published widely on the social, cultural and military history of east-central Europe and Britain during the First World War. His first monograph, Enduring the Great War. Combat, Morale and Collapse in the German and British Armies, 1914–1918 (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2008), was awarded the Institute of Contemporary History and the Wiener Library's Fraenkel Prize. His second book, a broad history of the First World War written from the perspectives of its instigators and losers, is entitled Ring of Steel. Germany and Austria-Hungary at War, 1914–1918 (London: Allen Lane, 2014). This book was winner of the 2014 Wolfson History Prize, the 2014 Guggenheim-Lehrman Prize in Military History, the Society for Military History's 2015 Distinguished Book Award and the 2015 British Army Military Book of the Year.

Associate Editor (Book Reviews)

Julia Torrie, St. Thomas University, Canada

Central European History offers articles, review essays, and book reviews that range widely through the history of Germany, Austria, and other German-speaking regions of Central Europe from the medieval era to the present. All topics and approaches to history are welcome, whether cultural, social, political, diplomatic, intellectual, economic, and military history, as well as historiography and methodology. Contributions that treat new fields, such as post-1945 and post-1989 history, maturing fields such as gender history, and less-represented fields such as medieval history and the history of the Habsburg lands are especially desired.

Membership

Becoming a member of the Central European History Society is easy! Membership comes with a subscription to the journal Central European History (CEH). Subscribe to the journal and join the group.

Yearly dues for CEH are $42 for full members and $27 for student members. For an additional $10 the member receives online access to all volumes of the journal.

Modern Italy

Published for the Association for the Study of Modern Italy

Editors

Penelope Morris, University of Glasgow, UK

Mark Seymour, University of Otago, New Zealand

Founded by the Association for the Study of Modern Italy (ASMI) in 1995, Modern Italy publishes leading research on the history, politics and social, economic and cultural life of Italy and the Italian peoples from the eighteenth century to the present. All articles are rigorously peer-reviewed, and the journal also publishes themed special issues, recent examples of which are "Sport and Public Space in Contemporary Italian Cities", "Disability Rights and Wrongs in Italy", "The Italian Risorgimento in Transnational Perspective", and "Fascism and Nature".

About ASMI

The Association for the Study of Modern Italy (ASMI) was founded in 1982 by Christopher Seton-Watson, to bring together individuals and organisations from the UK and abroad with teaching, research, professional or general interests in modern Italy from all disciplinary angles. Today, ASMI's membership is international and includes scholars and others from a wide range of disciplinary backgrounds including history, political science, languages, geography, literature and anthropology.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contemporary European History covers the history of eastern and western Europe, including the United Kingdom, from 1918 to the present. By combining a wide geographical compass with a relatively short time span, the journal achieves both range and depth. It is open to all forms of historical enquiry – including cultural, economic, international, political and social approaches – and welcomes comparative and transnational analysis.

Submissions

Authors wishing to submit articles for publication should do so through the journal's online submissions system at <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/conteurohistory>.

Articles should normally be about 8,000 words long, the total to include footnotes. Review articles should not exceed 5,000 words.

The journal is published in English, and contributions are normally submitted in that language; however, we will also consider articles submitted in other major European languages. If accepted for publication, these will be translated. All articles, including those commissioned, will be refereed.

An abstract of each article is published in English, French and German.

Submission of a paper will be taken to imply that it is unpublished and is not being considered for publication elsewhere. On acceptance of a paper, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press. An article cannot be published unless a signed copyright form is returned promptly.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their text.

The editors would be grateful if contributors kept closely to the journal's stylistic conventions. Copy-editing is time-consuming and the editors will return any contribution which does not follow the conventions for correction and re-typing.

Prospective authors should refer to the full set of Instruction for Contributors by following the link at <http://www.journals.cambridge.org/ceh>

Contributors of accepted papers will be expected to submit a final version which should include

1. the text, which should begin with the title, the author's name and email and postal address, and the author's affiliation as he/she should wish it to appear
2. a 100-word summary of the article in English, French or German
3. a short title for use as a running page-head
4. a statement of the article's length in number of words (including both text and footnotes), and a list of tables, graphs, maps and any other illustrative material (each of which should be supplied as a separate file)
5. a short biographical note with a description of work in progress and previously published work (130 words max.)
