The Behavioral and Brain Sciences

An International Journal of Current Research and Theory
with Open Peer Commentary

Edited by STEVAN HARNAD

The Behavioral and Brain Sciences provides an opportunity for an interesting form of scientific communication among researchers in all areas of psychology, neuroscience, behavioural biology and cognitive science. Original articles (and occasionally also précis of recent books or previously published articles) appear simultaneously with commentaries from fifteen, twenty or more of the authors' peers from across the spectrum of BBS disciplines, and the authors' replies to these commentaries.

Continuing commentary and replies are carried over to subsequent issues.

Recent and forthcoming articles include:

- H.J. EYSENCK The conditioning model of neurosis with commentary
R.K. DISMUKES New concepts of molecular communication among neurons with commentary
N. CHOMSKY Rules and representations with commentary
J. McGLONE Sex differences in human brain organisation with commentary

Theory and Meaning

David Papineau

Do scientists, adopting different theories, inevitably view the world through different conceptual spectacles? Papineau argues that differences in the meanings of scientific terms are indeed inevitably occasioned by differences in theoretical assumptions. However, he shows that this theory dependence of meaning is quite compatible with traditional notions of rationality and progress in the development of scientific thought. Topics discussed in this book include many central issues in the philosophy of science and the philosophy of language. £9.75

Grammar in Philosophy

Bede Rundle

In this thorough and wide-ranging study the author covers most of the topics of current interest in the philosophy of language. In particular the concern is with the constituents of noun and verb phrases, and the questions of meaning and reference which these involve, together with the larger sentential units into which these phrases enter, and which in turn connect with such central concepts as those of truth and force. £14

Structuralism and Since

From Lévi-Strauss to Derrida

Edited by John Sturrock

Structuralism began as a method of inquiry used by specialists first in linguistics and then in anthropology to organize and evaluate their findings. In this book experts in the field consider the work of five French thinkers who have been closely associated with Structuralism: Claude Lévi-Strauss, Roland Barthes, Michel Foucault, Jacques Lacan, and Jacques Derrida. £5.50 paper covers £2.95 OPUS

Making Sense

Geoffrey Sampson

Geoffrey Sampson emphatically favours the creative view of language. He believes the discipline of 'theoretical linguistics' to be a self-created, self-directed, self-justifying – though possibly unconscious – academic hoax. His book echoes the widely held fear that man's humanity is threatened by the importunate advances of an over-acquisitive 'scientism'. £7.95

STUDIES IN ENGLISH LINGUISTICS

For Randolph Quirk

Edited by Sidney Greenbaum, Geoffrey Leech and Jan Svartvik

This is a collection of essays in honour of Professor Randolph Quirk, whose major contribution to English linguistics it celebrates. The contributions, from a distinguished panel of leading scholars, represent what is best in current international research in the subject, and whilst showing the variety of directions this research is taking they reflect Professor Quirk's own sense of the unity underlying different approaches and methods in contemporary research in English.

LANGUAGE—THE LOADED WEAPON

The use and abuse of language today

Dwight Bolinger

In this book Dwight Bolinger explains in simple terms the essentials of linguistic form and meaning, and applies them to illuminate the questions of correctness, truth, class and dialect, manipulation through propaganda, sexual and other discrimination, official obfuscation, and—most pervasive of all—language as the vital agent with which we build our worlds.

JACQUES LACAN

Ecrits

A selection

Translated by ALAN SHERIDAN

Jacques Lacan is arguably the most influential French thinker since the Sartre of the 1940s. He is primarily a practising psychoanalyst, concerned particularly with training of analysts. A true follower of Freud, he listens, then speaks. His business is with speech, with the spoken word. For Lacan, much of the subsequent development in psychoanalysis has been a betrayal, an evasion of the radicality of the original Freudian insights.

The Languages of Australia

R. M. W. DIXON

This is the first title in a new series designed to offer general accounts of all the major language families of the world. In this volume, Professor Dixon considers the general character of the more than two hundred different Aboriginal languages of Australia, and their current use and role. He stresses that they are in no sense 'primitive' languages, and demonstrates this in the first-ever study of their genetic relationships, probable origins and historical development, and their grammatical and phonological behaviour.

Pidgin and Creole Languages

Selected Essays by Hugo Schuchardt

Edited by GLENN GILBERT

Hugo Schuchardt was effectively the founder of the now flourishing field of pidgin and creole studies. For the first time in an English translation, this volume presents and analyses a coherent selection of Schuchardt's most important essays, comprising studies of the English-based creoles and two of his major theoretical papers on the Lingua Franca and the language of the Saramacca Negroes in Surinam.

On Explaining Language Change

ROGER LASS

Dr Lass is here concerned with the nature of argumentation within linguistics and the status of its data and theoretical constructs. He examines current strategies of explanation in historical linguistics in the light of current approaches to scientific epistemology, outlines some tentative paths towards an alternative epistemology, and raises questions which should make linguists confront the philosophical implications of their subject.

Referential-Semantic Analysis

Aspects of a Theory of Linguistic Reference

TORBEN THRANE

Dr Thrane here makes a fundamental distinction between syntactic analyses which are internal to the structure of a language and analyses of the referential properties which connect a language with the 'outside world' – and therefore derive in some sense from common human capacities for perceptual discrimination.

An Introduction to the Pronunciation of English

Third Edition

A. C. Gimson

A thoroughly revised and re-set edition of the standard description of British English pronunciation. Professor Gimson has included a new chapter discussing the problems facing learners of English as a foreign language, and the levels of achievement at which they may realistically aim.

Review of the first edition

'The placing of phonetic detail of English pronunciation within a larger than usual framework brings to his study a liveliness that is welcome, because so often missing from the technical books normally confronting students of spoken language.' The Times Educational Supplement

Modern Phonology

Alan H. Sommerstein

Theoretical Linguistics 2

'... Sommerstein's book... is particularly welcome: it is a comprehensive and learned work, which mentions and discusses critically virtually every major recent proposal in phonological theory. Most significantly, it has a strong historical bias, and is not aimed at displaying the superiority of any particular school, but rather at treating all of them fairly and taking them seriously... in the hands of a skilled teacher it is an excellent choice for an honours phonology course, or for a postgraduate introduction... also an excellent choice for linguists in other fields who want to know what phonology is.' The Times Educational Supplement

CATHERINE BELSEY
Critical Practice

The aim of the book is both to criticize orthodox literary criticism and to highlight the alternatives. Thus it discusses in addition to the conventional approach, New Criticism, Archetypal Criticism, Reader Theory and the Aesthetics of Reception before embarking on a fuller investigation of the works of Barthes, Macherey, Althusser and Lacan. As an introduction to these new and often impenetrable critical theories this book is ideal, being both clear and practical.

KEIR ELAM
The Semiotics of Theatre and Drama

For the semiotician, the theatre represents an ideal laboratory and a daunting embarrassment of riches which raise all the fundamental problems of semiotic analysis. This study, the first of its kind in English, traces the history of semiotic approaches to performance from the Prague Structuralists' analyses of the theatrical sign in the 1930s to current theories of the code, text and discourse. It is an attempt to break effectively with the literary critical bias that has long dominated academic criticism of the drama.

Language and Cultural Description

Essays by Charles O. Frake

Selected and Edited by Anwar S. Dil. This is a collection of seventeen major essays by a leading anthropologist well known for his pioneering work in ethnoscience and componential analysis. Based on years of fieldwork among various culture groups in the Philippines, the author has developed a unique methodological repertoire to probe the questions members of a culture ask in categorizing their outlook and experience. Part I includes papers that show the growth of the author's methodological concerns. The remaining three parts represent the author's field investigations among the Subanon, the Yakan, and the Zamboanga and Sulu peoples. Language Science and National Development series. $17.50

THE LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION

THE LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION

The Linguistics Association of Great Britain was founded in 1959 to promote the study of linguistics and to provide for its members both a forum for discussion and facilities for co-operation in furtherance of their interest in linguistics. The Association holds annual spring and autumn meetings, at which original papers are presented in plenary sessions and in workshops devoted to special interests.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Chairman: Dr. N. V. Smith, Dept. of Phonetics & Linguistics, University College London, Gower Street, London) WC1E 6BT.

Hon. Secretary: Dr. G. Gazdar, School of Social Sciences, University of Sussex, Falmer, Brighton BN1 9QN.

Membership Secretary: Prof. R. Hogg, Dept. of English Language & Literature, University of Manchester, Oxford Road, Manchester M13 9PL.

Persons interested in linguistics are eligible for election as members, subject to the approval of the Committee. Subscribing members may receive the Journal of Linguistics at the special rate of £10.00 per annum. Application forms for membership may be obtained from the membership Secretary, Prof. R. Hogg, Department of English Language and Literature, University of Manchester, Manchester M13 9PL.

Meetings Secretary: Dr. M. Wheeler Dept. of Linguistics, University of Liverpool, P. O. Box 147, Liverpool, L69 3BX.

Treasurer: Ms. C. Cullen, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Hull, Hull HU6 7RX.

Assistant Secretary: Dr. R. Coates, School of Social Sciences, University of Sussex, Falmer, Brighton BN1 9QN.

Assistant Meetings Secretary: Dr. G. Pullum, Linguistics Section, Department of Phonetics and Linguistics, University College London, Gower Street, London WC1E 6BT.

BRITISH NATIONAL COMMITTEE FOR LINGUISTICS

The Chairman is Professor John Lyons of Sussex University, and the LAGB representatives are Professor R. B. Le Page of York University and Professor E. Henderson of the School of Oriental and African Studies.

THE LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN SPRING MEETING 1980

The Spring Meeting was held at the University of Birmingham on 26-28 April and the following papers were presented to the Association:

Manfred Bierwisch (Academy of Sciences of the German Democratic Republic, Berlin): Are word meanings concepts?

John Payne (University of Birmingham): Rare case-marking and verb-agreement systems in Iranian and Dardic.

Frans Plank (University of Hannover): Subjectivity and object-differentiation: the lexicon in typology.

Richard A Hudson (University College London): The contraction of to after want and other verbs.

Robert D Borsley (Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznan) and Geoffrey K Pullum (University College London): Comments on the two central claims of "Trace Theory".

Gwenllian Awbery (Welsh Folk Museum, Cardiff): Do we need morpheme boundaries in phonology?

Jane McBrearty (City of Birmingham Polytechnic): Simultaneity and the theory of universally determined rule application.

Roger Lass (University of Edinburgh): Survival, convergence, innovation: A problem in the theory of historical linguistics.

Richard Coates (University of Sussex): Anaphora in English armorial syntax.

Willis J Edmondson (Ruhr-Universität, Bochum): The determination of meaning in discourse.

Joanna Channell (University of York): Numerical approximations.

Mick Perkins (Polytechnic of Wales, Cardiff): The English modals laid bare.

Kean Gibson (University of York): The Guyanese tense and aspect system.

William J Dodd (University of Manchester): Mentionability of the body-part in verbs of bodily motion in English and German.

James Monaghan (University of Munich): On word-formation and the notion of underlying structure.

FUTURE MEETINGS

The Spring Meeting 1981 will be held at the University of Manchester 13-15 April, (local organizer; Dr. M. French, Dept. of General Linguistics, University of Manchester, Oxford Road, Manchester M13 9PL.)
