Edward M. Swiderski

IEO, University of Fribourg, Switzerland

Editorial Assistants:

Frances Nethercott

Fribourg, Switzerland

Evert van der Zweerde

Studies in East European Thought is intended to provide a forum for Western-language (English and German) writings on philosophy and philosophers who identify with the history and cultures of East and Central Europe, including Russia, Ukraine, and the Baltic States. The editors do not advocate a program or defend a position as to the nature and limits of philosophy in its manifold interactions with other disciplines and in its role in articulating cultural values and marking intellectual dissonances. They welcome descriptive, critical, comparative, and historical studies of individuals, schools, currents, and institutions whose work and influence are widely regarded in their own environments to be philosophical or provide insight into the socio-cultural conditions of philosophical life in Eastern Europe.

Dept. of Philosophy, Boston University, MA, USA

Synthese publishes articles in the theory of knowledge, the general methodological problems of science, such as the problems of scientific discovery and scientific interest, of induction and probability, of causation and of the role of mathematics, statistics and logic in science, the methodological and foundational problems of the different departmental sciences, insofar as they have philosophical interest, those aspects of symbolic logic and of the foundations of mathematics which are relevant to the philosophy and methodology of science, and those facets of the history and sociology of science which are important for contemporary topical pursuits.

Particular attention is paid to the role of mathematical, logical and linguistic methods in the general methodology of science and the foundations of the different sciences, be they physical, biological, behavioral or social.

Most of the issues of Synthese are organized into thematic issues, taking the character of symposia dealing with described themes.

Philosophical Studies

An International Journal for Philosophy in the Analytic Tradition

Editor-in-Chief:

Stewart Cohen, Arizona State University, Tempe, USA

Editor:

Keith Lehrer, University of Arizona, Tucson, USA

Philosophical Studies was founded in 1950 by Herbert Feigl and Wilfrid Sellars to provide a periodical dedicated to work in analytic philosophy. The journal remains devoted to the publication of papers in exclusively analytic philosophy. Papers applying formal techniques to philosophical problems are welcome. The principal aim is to publish articles that are models of clarity and precision in dealing with significant philosophical issues. It is intended that readers of the journal will be kept abreast of the central issues and problems of contemporary analytic philosophy.

Journal of Philosophical Logic

Published under the Auspices of the Association for Symbolic Logic

Managing Editor: Rohit Parikh,
City University of New York, USA

Editor: Krister Segerberg,
Dept. of Philosophy, Uppsala University, Sweden

The Journal of Philosophical Logic publishes papers that utilize formal methods or that deal with topics in logical theory, such as: - Contributions to branches of logical theory directly related to philosophical concerns, such as inductive logic, modal logic, deontic logic, quantum logic, tense logic, free logic, logic of questions, logic of commands, logic of preference, logic of conditionals, many-valued logic, and relevance logics.

- Contributions to philosophical discussions that utilize the machinery of formal logic, as in recent treatments of abstract entities, non-existent possibles, essentialism, existence, propositional attitudes, meaning and truth. - Discussions of philosophical issues relating to logic and the logical structure of language, such as conventionalism in logic, ontic commitment, logical or semantic paradoxes, the logic of hypotheses and of pre-suppositions, constructivism, and extensionality. - Philosophical work relating to specific sciences (such as linguistics, history of logic, or physics), with an emphasis on foundational problems, and making use of logical theory. Some instances of recent work of this kind are the treatments of universal grammar, pragmatics, conceptions of possibility, theories and mathematical truth in the history of philosophy, formalization of scientific theories, or logical structure in quantum mechanics.

Biology & Philosophy

Editor-in-Chief:

Kim Sterelny, Research School of the Social Sciences, Australian National University, Canberra, Australia and Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

The past decades have witnessed fascinating and controversial advances in the biological sciences. One may think, for instance, of methods for analyzing the basic molecular units of heredity; of proposals and clarifications of the appropriate methods of classifying organisms; of exciting new ideas about the nature of the fossil record and their implications for the elucidation of evolutionary mechanisms; and of ways in which the biological study of behavior has been extended, theoretically and experimentally, and of supposed implications for humankind. To add to these internal issues, the outside world has also seen much debate on biology – in the world of education, for instance. These and other issues have made biology one of the most exhilarating areas of science, and have aroused in biologists and philosophers an awareness that there is a need for meta-theoretical analysis, both about the very nature of biology, as well as about its social implications. Biology and Philosophy is aimed at a broad readership, drawn from both the sciences and the humanities. The journal subscribes to no specific school of biology, nor of philosophy, and publishes work from authors of all persuasions and all disciplines. The editorial board reflects this attitude in its composition and its world-wide membership.

'Biology and Philosophy has started well...it will perform a genuine service...this is a journal that no thoughtful biologist should ignore.'
