

Association News

M. Kent Jennings Nominated President-Elect

The 1996 Nominating Committee composed of Sheilah Ards, University of Minnesota; Linda Brady, Georgia Tech; Edward Carmines, Indiana University, chair; Cynthia Kaplan, University of California-Santa Barbara; Don Kommers, Notre Dame University; and Tracy B. Strong, University of California-San Diego, propose the following slate for Association officers and council members.

President-Elect (1996–97): M. Kent Jennings, University of California-Santa Barbara

M. Kent Jennings is professor of political science at the University of California, Santa Barbara, and—until recently—at the University of Michigan, where he was also a research scientist at the Center for Political Studies. He began his career on the staff of the Brookings Institution, and has been a visiting professor or scholar at Tilburg University, in the Netherlands, the University of California, Los Angeles, the University of Oregon, and Beijing University. His B.A. degree is from the University of Redlands, and his Ph.D. is from the University of North Carolina (1961).

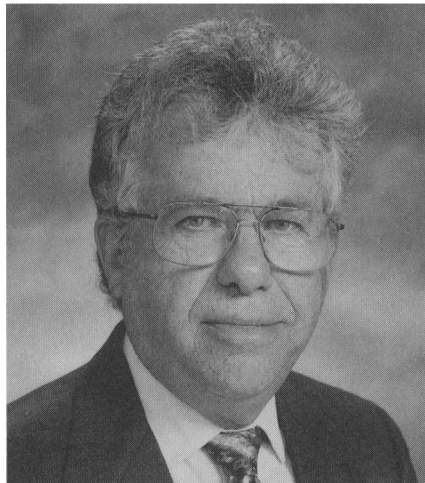

Jennings is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences (1982), and a past fellow of the Center for Advanced Studies in the Behavioral Sciences (1977–78), the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities and Social Sciences (1987), and the Guggenheim Foundation (1977–78). He has served on the editorial boards of the American Journal of Political Science, the Journal of Politics, Women and Politics, American Politics Quarterly, and Youth and Society.

His authored or coauthored books include Community Influentials (1964), The Image of the Fed- eral Service (1964), The Political Character of Adolescence (1974), Governing American Schools (1974), Generations and Politics (1981), Parties in Transition (1986), and Continuities in Political Action (1989). Coedited volumes include The Electoral Process (1966), Comparative Political Socialization (1974), and Elections at Home and Abroad (1994). He has also authored or coauthored over 60 journal articles and book chapters.

Jennings has served on the APSA's Executive Council, the Committee on Research Support, and the Committee on the Status of Women in the Profession. He received the APSA's award (since discontinued) for the best dissertation in the field of state and local government (1961) and a mentor of distinction award from the Women's Political Caucus for Political Science (1989). Jennings was a founding member, program cochair, and president of the International Society of Political Psychology (1989–90). He is an associate director of the Inter-University Consortium for Political and Social Research.

Fields: American and Comparative Politics, Political Socialization, Public Opinion and Political Participation, Women and Politics.

M. Kent Jennings

Vice President (1996–97): Suzanne Berger, Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Suzanne Berger is Raphael Dorman and Helen Starbuck Professor of Political Science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She holds a B.A. from the University of Chicago (1960) and a Ph.D. from Harvard University (1967). Since 1968 she has been teaching at MIT and served as chair of the Department of Political Science there from 1989 to 1992. Her research focuses on the political economy of advanced industrial countries, with special emphasis on Europe. Her books include Peasants against Politics: The French Political System; Dualism and Discontinuity in Industrial Societies (with Michael Piore); Organizing Interests in Western Europe; The Utilization of the Social Sciences in Policy Making in the United States (editor). She was a member of the MIT Commission on Industrial Productivity and a coauthor of its report, Made in America: Regaining the Productive Edge. Her current research concerns the impact of trade on domestic politics; on this subject, she and Ronald Dore have edited and contributed to a new book, National Diversity and Global Capitalism (Cornell University Press, 1996).

Berger was the first chair of the Social Science Research Council Committee on West Europe and has served on the SSRC Board of Directors and on its Joint Advisory Committee on International Programs as well as on the Fulbright program oversight board, the Council for International Exchange of Scholars. She was the founder and director of Seminar XXI: Foreign Politics and the National Interest, an MIT program run in Washington, DC for senior members of the national security community (1986–1993). In 1994, she was named director of the new MIT International

Suzanne Berger

Science and Technology Initiative (MISTI).

Currently she is a member of the Operating Committee of the MIT Industrial Performance Center. In 1993 she was named to the new German-American Academic Council. She is a member of the National Research Council Competitiveness Task Force on Maximizing U.S. Interests in Science and Technology Relations with Japan. She is a Senior Research Associate of the Center for European Studies at Harvard University. Her honors include Phi Beta Kappa, election as a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a Guggenheim Fellowship, membership in the Council on Foreign Relations, and election as French-American Foundation Professor of American Civilization at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales in Paris, France (1985–6). In 1993 the French Government named her Officier dans l'Ordre des Palmes Academiques.

Vice-President (1996–97): William E. Nelson, Jr., The Ohio State University

William E. Nelson, Jr., is Research Professor of Black Studies and professor of political science at The Ohio State University. Nelson served as chair of the Black Studies Department at Ohio State from 1972–1986. He is the former president of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists and the former chair of the National Council for Black Studies. Currently, he is president of the American Heritage Studies Association. He has served as a member of the Council of the American Political Science Association.

Nelson's teaching and research interests are in the areas of American Politics, Urban Politics, Black Politics, Race and Ethnic Relations and Public Policy. He has lectured at colleges, universities and professional conferences in the United States, Europe, the Caribbean, South America, Africa and Asia. His published research include Electing Black Mayors: Political Action in The Black Community, co-authored with Philip Meranto, and articles appearing in the Public Administration Review, Urban Affairs Quarterly, National Political Science Review, Theory Into Practice, The Review of Black Political Economy, The Annals of the Academy of Social and Political Science and other scholarly publication sources. His current research interests focus on comparative racial politics in Europe and the United States. Among his awards and achievements are: The Distinguished Service Award, Office of Minority Affairs, The Ohio State University; The Distinguished Achievement Award, Dillard University; Award of Merit, Committee on the Status of Blacks, APSA; Success Stories Teaching Award, The Ohio State University; and The Distinguished Affirmative Action Award, The Ohio State University.

William E. Nelson, Jr.

Nelson received his B.A. degree in history and government from A.M. & N. College (Pine Buff, Arkansas), M.A. in political science from Atlanta University, and Ph.D. in political science from the University of Illinois. He served as a Fulbright Research Scholar in England in 1990.

Vice President (1996–97): G. Bingham Powell, Jr., University of Rochester

G. Bingham Powell, Jr. is professor of political science at the University of Rochester. He teaches undergraduate and graduate courses on comparative politics, European politics, political conflict, and the study of political science. He received his B.A. from Princeton in 1963 and his Ph.D. from Stanford in 1968. He has taught political science at Berkeley (1968–1970) and the University of North Carolina (1980–81) as well as the University of Rochester. He served as director of graduate studies in political science at Rochester in 1973–1976, 1977–1982 and 1984–1986, and as department chair in 1986–1989. He is a former Guggenheim Fellow and was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Science in 1991.

Powell's dissertation research on politics in an Austrian community was published by Stanford University Press as Social Fragmentation and Political Hostility in 1970. Subsequent research on Austrian politics was followed by a series of studies comparing political processes across democratic nations (e.g., APSR, 1981, 1986; AJPS, 1986). His book, Contemporary Democracies: Participation, Stability and Violence (Harvard University Press, 1982), won the APSA's 1983 Woodrow Wilson Prize for the best book in political science. His most recent work, represented by articles in the Journal of Theoretical Politics (1989), the American Journal of Political Science (1993), and World Politics (1994), has focused on the role of democratic elections in linking citizens and policymakers. He is also co-author of two books in comparative politics with Gabriel A. Almond: Comparative Politics: A Developmental Approach (1966) and Comparative Politics: System, Process and Policy (1978). The 6th edition of their coauthored and coedited introductory textbook, Comparative Politics Today, appeared in January 1996.

G. Bingham Powell, Jr.

From September 1991 through August 1995, Bingham Powell was Managing Editor of the American Political Science Review.

Secretary (1996–97): Virginia Sapiro, University of Wisconsin-Madison

Virginia Sapiro is the Sophonisba P. Breckinridge Professor of Political Science and Women's Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, and is just completing a term as chair of the Department of Political Science. She earned her bachelor's degree at Clark University and her M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

Among her books are The Political Integration of Women (1983), Women in American Society (1986, 1990, 1994), and A Vindication of Political Virtue: The Political Theory of Mary Wollstonecraft (1992), which won the 1993 APSA Victoria Schuck Award for best book on women and politics. She has also published many articles and book chapters on political psychology and gender politics, including papers that have won awards from the Midwest, Southern, and Western Political Science Associations. She was recipient of the International Society for Political Psychology's Erik Erikson Award for Early Career Contributions to Political Psychology.

Sapiro is a member of the Board of Overseers of the National Election Study. She has chaired the APSA Committee on the Status of Women, Nominations Committee, and most recently, the Woodrow Wilson Book Award Committee. She has also served on the councils of the Midwest Political Science Association and the International Society for Political Psychology and was founding President of the APSA Organized Section on Women and Politics Research.

Fields: Political Psychology and Sociology, American Politics, Gender Politics, Feminist Theory.

Council (1996–98): Martha Ackelsberg, Smith College

Martha Ackelsberg is professor of government and women's studies at Smith College. She earned her B.A. at Radcliffe College, and an M.A. and Ph.D. in Politics (Political Philosophy) at Princeton University. She joined the government department at Smith in the fall of 1972, and has since held visiting appointments at the University of Massachusetts (Amherst) and at the University of Sussex. She regularly teaches courses on urban politics, political participation, feminist theory, and political theory, in addition to occasional interdisciplinary courses in women's studies and Spanish anarchism.

Martha Ackelsberg

Her book, Free Women of Spain: Anarchism and the Struggle for the Emancipation of Women, published in 1991 by Indiana University Press, explores the role of women in the Spanish anarchist movement in the years before and during the Spanish Civil War. In addition, she has published numerous articles and book chapters on women's activism in the United States and Latin America, gender and public policy, feminist and democratic theory, changing understandings of families, and on women in Jewish communities. Her current work explores aspects of gender and citizenship.

Ackelsberg has held an American Association of University Women Graduate Fellowship, and has been a fellow at the Bunting Institute of Radcliffe College, a faculty associate of the Center for European Studies at Harvard University, a visiting scholar at the Institute for Research on Women at Columbia University, and a visiting fellow at the Walt Whitman Center for the Culture and Politics of Democracy at Rutgers University. Within the profession, she has been active in the Western Political Science Association, most recently serving as section chair of the gender and politics section for the 1996 meetings. Within the APSA, she recently completed a two-year term as a member of the Committee on the Status of Lesbians and Gays in the Profession, and is currently serving as chair of the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Political Science Caucus.

Council (1996–98): E.J. Dionne, Jr., Washington Post

E.J. Dionne writes for the editorial page and has a weekly column on the Op-Ed page of the Washington Post. He specializes in political issues.

He graduated summa cum laude with a B.A. degree from Harvard University. He attended Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar, and received a Ph.D. degree in sociology from Oxford University.

E.J. Dionne, Jr.

Dionne joined the Post in 1990, covering national politics. Prior to joining the Post, he worked for the New York Times as a reporter covering state and local politics for their metro staff, covering the 1980 Presidential campaign, serving as Albany bureau chief and was assigned to the Paris News Bureau while covering the war in Beirut. He covered both Italian news and the Vatican as the Rome Bureau Chief and was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize in 1986 for his Vatican coverage. Mr. Dionne served as chief national political correspondent and received another nomination for the Pulitzer Prize for political coverage. He helped establish the New York Times/CBS News Poll.

Dionne has published articles in academic books and publications including the New Republic and Commonwealth. He is the author of Why Americans Hate Politics (Simon & Schuster, 1991), and They Only Look Dead (Simon & Schuster, 1996).

Council (1996–98): Kathie Stromile Golden, Morgan State University

Kathie Stromile Golden is chair of the department of political science and international studies and director of the graduate program in international studies at Morgan State University. She earned her Bachelor's and Master's degrees at Southern University, Baton Rouge, and her Ph.D. at the University of Kentucky.

She currently serves as the president of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists and director of NCOBPS's Graduate Assistantship Program. She also serves on the editorial board of the National Political Science Review and as advisory editor for the Morgan State University Journal of Undergraduate Research.

Her publications include "Media in Warsaw Pact States: Explanations of Crisis Coverage" (1992), and "Changes in Central and East European Communist Systems," National Political Science Review (1992).

She has received Fulbright Study Abroad, National Endowment for the Humanities, and Lily Foundation grants for curriculum development. For her leadership and service, Stromile Golden has received numerous honors and awards. From 1988–1990 she was a Chancellor's Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the University of Illinois-Champaign. In 1993 and 1995 she received the National Conference of Black Political Scientist's Presidential Award, and has received grants for study and research in China, Russia, and Poland.

In the APSA, she has served on the Heinz-Eulau Awards Committee, and as co-division chair of the Communist Politics and After Division for the 1995 Program. She was an APSA Fellow and currently serves on the Committee on the Status of Blacks.

Kathie Stromile Golden

Council (1996–98): John E. Jackson, University of Michigan

John E. Jackson is professor of political science and of business economics and public policy, research scientist, and chair of the department of political science at the University of Michigan. His research and teaching cover a number of topics in political economy, U.S. politics, and empirical methods. Current research projects concern models of political preferences and electoral competition, the role of entrepreneurship in economic and political transitions, regional economic development, and the development of statistical methods for social scientists. This work includes studies in Michigan, the United States, China, Ukraine, Russia and Poland.

Jackson's publications have appeared in such journals and edited volumes as the American Political Science Review, American Journal of Political Science, Public Opinion Quarterly, Regional Science and Urban Economics, Small Business Economics, The New Handbook of Political Science, Political Analysis and Research Bulletin: Polish Academy of Sciences. Jackson is also the author or editor of four books.

Jackson was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1979–80, a Fulbright Research Fellowship (Poland) in 1993–94, and the APSA's Heinz Eulau Prize in 1994. He was president of the Methodology Section of the American Political Science Association from 1985 to 1987. He currently is co-editor of the Michigan Press series in Political Analysis.

Jackson received undergraduate and master's degrees in industrial administration from Carnegie-Mellon University and an M.P.A. and a Ph.D. in political economy and government from Harvard University. He taught economics at the United States Air Force Academy (1969–70), political science at Harvard University (1970–77) and at the University of Pennsylvania

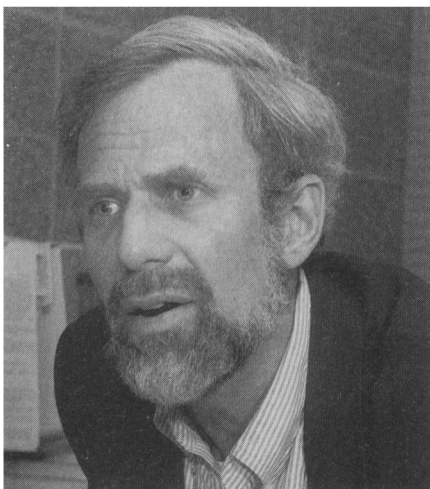

John E. Jackson

(1977–80), and public management at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania (1977–80) before coming to the University of Michigan in 1980.

Council (1996–98): David Laitin,
University of Chicago

David D. Laitin is the William R. Kenan Jr. Professor of Political Science and director of the Center for the Study of Politics, History and Culture (Wilder House) at the University of Chicago. He received his B.A. from Swarthmore College and his Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley. From 1975–87, he served on the political science faculty of the University of California, San Diego, and chaired that department in 1986–87. As a comparativist, he has conducted field research in Somalia, Nigeria, Catalonia, and Estonia. His books include: "Politics, Language, and Thought: The Somali Experience" (Chicago, 1977), "Hegemony and Culture: Politics and Religious Change Among the Yoruba" (Chicago, 1986), and "Language Repertoires and State Construction in Africa" (Cambridge, 1992). He is currently working on a book tentatively titled, "Identity in Formation: The Russian-Speaking Diaspora in the Near Abroad." He has received the Gregory Luebbert Award from the Comparative Politics Section for his "The Tower of Babel as a Coordination Game: Political Linguistics in Ghana" published by the American Political Science Review. He has also received the Mary Parker Follett Prize from the Politics and History Section for his (co-authored) "Language and the Construction of States: The Case of Catalonia in Spain" published in Politics and Society. He has received fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the National Science Foundation, the Howard Foundation, and in 1995–96, he is the recipient of a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship. In 1995, he was elected as a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. From 1993–95 he served as president of the Comparative Politics Section of the American Political Science Association.

David Laitin

Council (1996–98): Michael Laver,
Trinity College Dublin

Michael Laver is professor of political science at Trinity College Dublin. Before this he was professor of political science at University College Galway, and previous full-time appointments were at the University of Liverpool, and Queen's University Belfast. He has spent periods as a visiting professor at Harvard University, Duke University and the University of Texas at Austin, and as a Scholar in Residence at the Rockefeller Foundation's Villa Serbelloni in Bellagio. He holds a B.A. and M.A. from Essex University and his Ph.D. is from Liverpool.

Michael Laver

He is co-editor of the European Journal of Political Research and a former elected member of the Executive of the European Consortium for Political research. He was founding editor of Irish Political Studies and is a former president of the Political Studies Association of Ireland. He has recently finished a tour of duty as a member of the APSR editorial board and remains on the editorial boards of a number of other journals. Elected to the Royal Irish Academy, he is a founding member of the Academy's Social Science Research Council, and last year finally succeeded in extracting money from the Irish government to fund the Council's program of social science research. He is the only political scientist on the Irish government's Constitution Review Group, a body engaged in a root and branch review of the Irish constitution.

His main research interests have been in the theory and practice of party competition and government formation, and he has published over a dozen books and about 80 articles on these and other matters. Most recent books include: Making and Breaking Governments (1996, with Ken Shepsle); Representative Government in Modern Europe (1995, with Michael Gallagher and Peter Mair); Cabinet Ministers and Parliamentary Government (edited 1994, with Ken Shepsle); and Multiparty Government (1990, with Norman Schofield). He is currently revising two out-of-print early works, Playing Politics and The Politics of Private Desires and planning, after this, to begin a methodological and empirical project on estimating policy positions from published sources.

Council (1996–98): John Gerald Ruggie, Columbia University

John Gerard Ruggie is the Burgess Professor of Political Science and International Affairs at Columbia University, where he served as dean of the School of International and Public Affairs from 1991–1996. He previously taught at Columbia from 1978 to 1987, before joining the faculty of the newly created Graduate School of International Relations and Pacific Studies at the University of California, San Diego. While at UCSD, he also served as director of the University of California's systemwide Institute on Global Conflict and Cooperation.

Among his scholarly publications are six edited or authored books—including, most recently, Winning the Peace: America and World Order in the New Era (1996), as well as a forthcoming collection of essays, Institutions and Transformation in the World Polity—together with some fifty scholarly articles and book chapters on such diverse topics as international relations theory, international political economy, international institutions, and U.S. foreign policy. He delivered the 1994 Malim Harding Lecture at the University of Toronto, and the 1994 Jean Monnet Lecture at the European University Institute in Florence, Italy. During 1995–96, he was president of the Association of Professional Schools of International Affairs.

In the policy realm, Ruggie has been a consultant to the United Nations, including the Under-Secretary General for Peacekeeping and the Director-General for Development and International Economic Cooperation, and he chaired the Advisory Committee of the Center for National Security Studies at the Los Alamos National Laboratory from 1987–1995. He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and a past Governor of the Foreign Policy Association as well as the United Nations Association of the United States of America.

John Gerald Ruggie

Ruggie studied history and politics at McMaster University in Canada, and received his Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley, in 1974, remaining on the faculty there until 1978. He has held visiting appointments at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in Geneva, Switzerland; Harvard University's Center for International Affairs; the Royal Institute of International Affairs in London; Beijing University; the Policy Studies Group in Tokyo; and in May 1996 will be the Leonard Davis Distinguished Fellow at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

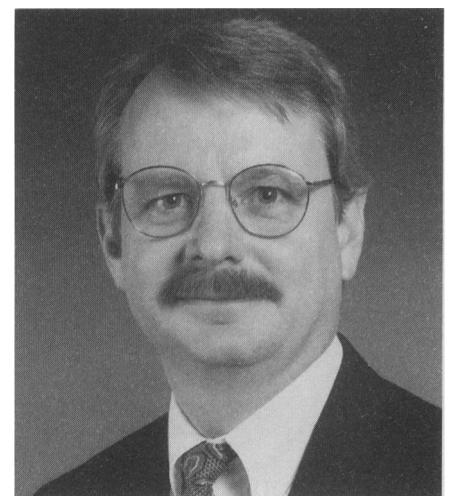

Council (1996–98): Joseph Stewart, Jr., University of New Mexico

Joseph Stewart, Jr. is professor of political science at the University of New Mexico, after sojourns at the University of New Orleans, West Virginia University, University of Texas at Dallas, and visiting positions at the Educational Testing Service, San Diego State University, Rice University, and Wichita State University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Houston (1977); M.A. from Florida State University (1971); A.B. from the University of Georgia (1970).

Stewart has been President of the Southwestern Political Science Association and has served or continues to serve on the executive councils of the Public Policy; Race, Ethnicity, and Politics; and Urban Politics Sections of the APSA, as well as the Midwest Political Science Association. In addition, he is a member of the APSA's Committee on Organized Sections and was the Constitutional Law and Jurisprudence Section representative on the 1996 Program Committee. He is a member of the editorial boards of the American Journal of Political Science, Political Research Quarterly, and the "Race and Ethnicity in Urban Politics" Series at the University Press of Virginia. Previously, he served on the editorial board of State and Local Government Review.

Stewart's research interests span civil rights policy, racial politics, regulation, judicial politics, and education policy, and his work has appeared in the American Journal of Political Science, Journal of Politics, Social Science Quarterly, National Political Science Review, Public Administration Review, and a variety of other political science, public policy, public law, public administration, and education journals. He is a co-winner of the 1992 Herbert Kaufman Best Paper Award from the Public Administration section of the APSA. His most recent books are texts: "Can We All Get Along?" Racial and Ethnic Minorities in American Politics, with Paula D. McClain (Westview, 1995), and Public Policy: An Evolutionary Approach, with James P.

Joseph Stewart, Jr.

Lester (West, 1996). He is perhaps best known for his coauthorship, with Ken Meier, of "Rotisserie Political Science" (PS, September, 1992) and his appearance on the "Contributions of Elvis Presley to Political Science" panel at the 1989 Southern Political Science Association meetings in Memphis.

Continuing officers and council members for 1996–97 will be:

President (1996–97): Elinor Ostrom, Indiana University

Elinor Ostrom is Arthur F. Bentley Professor of Political Science and Co-Director of the Workshop in Political Theory and Policy Analysis at Indiana University where she has held positions since 1965. During her tenure she has served as chair of the department of political science from 1980–84 and acting chair from 1989–90, graduate advisor from 1966–69 and professor, part time, at Indiana's School of Public and Environmental Affairs since 1984. She has served as a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences since the Spring of 1991. With undergraduate and graduate degrees from the University of California, Los Angeles, she earned her Ph.D. from UCLA in 1965.

Her fields of specialization include Public and Urban Policy, as well as Economic Policy. She is the author or editor of more than a dozen books, including Patterns of Metropolitan American (1977); Strategies of Political Inquiry (1982); Governing the Commons: the Evolution of Institutions for Collective Action (1990); Crafting Institutions for Self-Governing Irrigation Systems (1992); Rules, Games, and Common-Pool Resources (1994); and Local Commons and Global Interdependence: Heterogeneity and Cooperation in Two Domains (1995). She has also written more than a hundred book chapters and articles in professional journals. She has served on the editorial boards of such professional journals as the American Political Science Review, American Journal of Political Science, Publius, Social Science Quarterly, and Urban Affairs Quarterly.

Elinor Ostrom

Ostrom has a long record of service with the American Political Science Association including terms as Vice President and Program Chair, as well as terms as chairs of the Departmental Services, Nominations, and Research committees. She has also served as President of the Midwest Political Science Association, President of the Public Choice Society, and President of the International Association for the Study of Common Property.

Treasurer (1995–97): Gary Jacobson, University of California, San Diego

Gary C. Jacobson is professor of political science and chair of the department at U.C. San Diego, where he has taught since 1979. He received his A.B. from Stanford in 1966 and his Ph.D. from Yale in 1972. From 1970 to 1979 he taught at Trinity College, Hartford. He has also taught at U.C. Riverside (1968), Yale (1973) and Stanford (1986–87). During 1990–91 he was a Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences.

Jacobson is the author of Money in Congressional Elections (1980), which won the Gladys E. Kammerer Award (1981) and the Leon Epstein Award (1991), The Politics of Congressional Elections (3rd ed., 1992), The Electoral Origins of Divided Government (1990), and coauthor of Strategy and Choice in Congressional Elections (2nd ed., 1983).

Gary Jacobson

He has served on the Board of Overseers of National Elections Studies (1985–93), the APSA Council (1993–94), and the APSA's Committee on Research Support. He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Fields: American Government, Political Parties and Interest Groups, and Electoral Behavior and Public Opinion.

Council (1995–97): Ruth Berins Collier, University of California, Berkeley

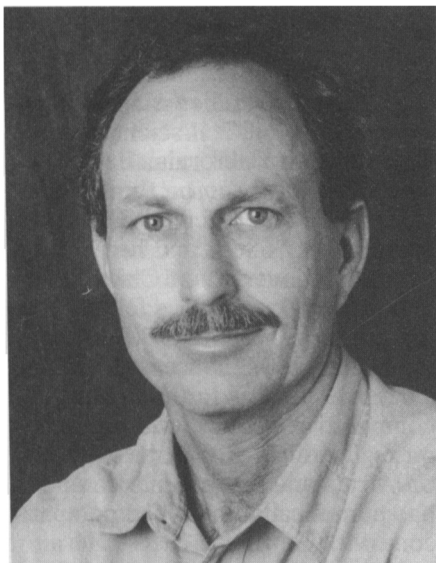

Ruth Berins Collier is associate professor of political science at the University of California, Berkeley, where she has been on the faculty since 1990. She received her B.A. from Smith College and her Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1974. She is currently a fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences.

Her research is in the field of comparative politics, with a focus on regime change. She has written on Africa and Latin America and has periodically employed comparisons with European cases. Her publications include: Regimes in Tropical Africa: Changing Forms of Supremacy, 1945–1975; Shaping the Political Arena: Critical Junctures, The Labor Movement, and Regime Dynamics (coauthored), which won the prize for Best Book Award (for a book published in 1990, 1991, and 1992) of the Comparative Politics Section of the APSA; and The Contradictory Alliance: State-Labor Relations and Regime Change in Mexico, which was awarded the Hubert Herring Best Book Prize of the Pacific Coast Council on Latin American Studies. Her articles have appeared in the American Political Science Review, Comparative Political Studies, and Comparative Politics, as well as many edited volumes. She has served as section chair for the Western Political Science Association, the American Political Science Association, and the International Political Science Association.

Council (1995–97): Micheal W. Giles, Emory University

Micheal W. Giles is professor of political science at Emory University. He received a B.A. from the University of North Texas in 1968. In 1969 he received an M.A. and in 1971 a Ph.D. from the University of Kentucky. He began his career at Florida Atlantic University in 1971 and served as the chair of that department from 1980 to 1983. He came to Emory as chair of the department in 1983 and served in that capacity through 1989.

Micheal Giles

Giles was editor of The Journal of Politics from 1984–1987 and continues to serve on the editorial board of that journal. He has also served on the editorial boards of The American Journal of Political Science, American Politics Quarterly and Social Science Quarterly.

Giles is currently President of the Southern Political Science Association. He has also served as a member of the Executive Council of that Association, 1981–84, and Chair of its program committee, 1992. He served as chair of the APSA Committee on Publications, 1988–91, and as a member of the Executive Committee of the Law and Courts Section of the APSA, 1993–94. He was a participant in the collaborative effort that supported the APSA Ralph Bunche Institute in Atlanta between 1988 and 1993.

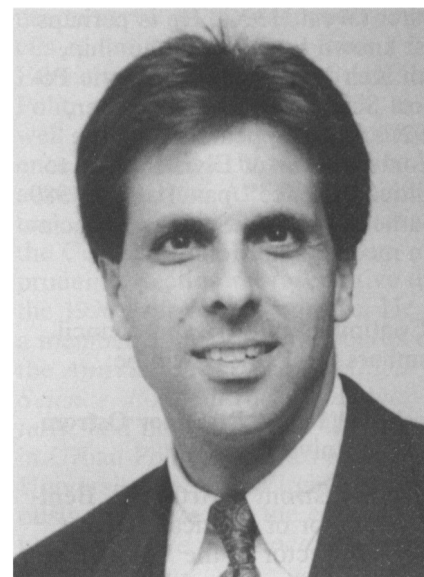

Giles is a Fellow of the Carter Center of Emory University. In that capacity he is responsible for evaluation of The Atlanta Project. The latter is an ambitious program undertaken by President Carter to attack urban social problems using the strategy of empowerment. The project has twenty sites in the Atlanta metropolitan area and includes approximately 500,000 residents.

His academic research focuses on courts and on issues of race in American politics. He has published articles on these topics in The American Political Science Review, The American Sociological Review, The Journal of Politics, The American Journal of Political Science, Social Science Quarterly, The Journal of Conflict Resolution, Legislative Studies Quarterly, and other journals.

Council (1995–97): Rodney Hero, University of Colorado, Boulder

Rodney Hero is professor of political science at the University of Colorado at Boulder. He received his Ph.D. from Purdue University (1980) and B.S. from Florida State University (1975).

His research focuses on Latino politics, as well as State and Urban Government and Politics, and Federalism in the U.S. He was awarded the APSA's Ralph J. Bunche Award in 1993 for Latinos and the U.S. Political System: Two-tiered Pluralism (Temple University Press, 1992). His research has appeared in the American Journal of Political Science (forthcoming), Polity, Western Political Quarterly, Social Science Quarterly, Publius: The Journal of Federalism, Urban Affairs Quarterly and other scholarly journals and in edited books. He has served on the editorial board of the Journal of Politics and is presently on the editorial boards of the American Journal of Political Science and Political Research Quarterly.

Rodney Hero

He has served on several APSA committees, including the William Anderson Award Committee (Chair, 1993), Committee on the Status of Latinos/Chicanos in the Profession and the Committee on International Political Science, as well as on committees for several other political science organizations.

Fields: Urban and Ethnic Politics; State Politics; Federalism; U.S. Politics—General.

Council (1995–97): Pamela K. Jensen, Kenyon College

Pamela K. Jensen is professor of political science at Kenyon College, where she has taught since 1979. She received her B.A. from Kent State University and her Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. She has also been Benedict Distinguished Visiting Professor at Carleton College and taught at the University of Colorado and Lake Forest College.

She has been Convenor of the Ohio branch of the Conference for the Study of Political Thought since 1981. She has served as a member of the congressional Thomas Jefferson Commemoration Commission. She is on the editorial board of Interpretation.

She has received Fellowships from the NEH, Earhart Foundation, and the Newberry Library. She has published articles in modern political philosophy, issues of higher education, and on political issues in Shakespeare's plays. Her current research concerns "the theological-sexual problem in Rousseau." She is contributing editor of the forthcoming book, Finding a New Feminism: Rethinking the Woman Question for Liberal Democracy.

She is currently serving on the Leo Strauss Award Committee for the APSA. She has been Secretary-Treasurer of the APSA Politics and Literature Organized Section.

Fields: Political Philosophy, Politics and Literature.

Pamela K. Jensen

Bruce W. Jentleson

Council (1995–97): Bruce W. Jentleson, University of California, Davis

Bruce Jentleson is Director of the UC Davis Washington Center and professor of political science at UC Davis. In 1993–94 he served in the State Department as Special Assistant to the Director of the Policy Planning Staff. In 1987–88, and again in 1992, he served as a foreign policy advisor to then-Senator Al Gore. He holds a B.A. from Cornell University (1973), M.Sc. from the London School of Economics and Political Science (1975) and Ph.D. from Cornell (1983). His dissertation was chosen for the APSA's Harold D. Lasswell Award in Policy Studies.

His most recent book is With Friends Like These: Reagan, Bush and Saddam, 1982–1990 (W.W. Norton, 1994). He also is the author of Pipeline Politics (Cornell University Press, 1986), co-editor and contributor to Foreign Military Intervention: The Dynamics of Protracted Conflict (Columbia University Press, 1992), a Senior Editor of the forthcoming four-volume Encyclopedia of U.S. Foreign Relations, and currently working on a new book, New Era, New Century: American Foreign Policy After the Cold War. His articles have appeared in numerous journals and edited books.

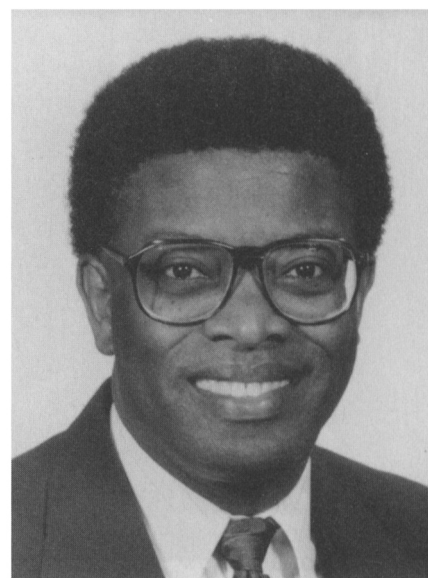

He also currently is working on research and policy projects with the Washington Institute for Near East Policy, the Atlantic Council, the American Assembly, and the University of California Institute on Global Conflict and Cooperation.

He has been an International Affairs Fellow of the Council on Foreign Relations, a Guest Scholar at the Brookings Institution, and the recipient of grants from the Carnegie Corporation, the Social Science Research Council, the American Council of Learned Societies and others. In 1989–91 he served a term as a member of the Council of the National Capital Area Political Science Association. He was Foreign Policy Analysis Section Chair for the 1991 APSA Annual Meeting.

Council (1995–97): Richard J. Payne, Illinois State University

Richard J. Payne holds the rank of Distinguished Professor of Political Science at Illinois State University. He received his B.A. from Graceland College in Iowa and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Howard University. He was a Visiting Scholar at the Center for International Affairs at Harvard University and a member of the joint Harvard-MIT Seminar on Political Development.

His publications include The Clash with Distant Cultures: Values, Interests, and Force in Ameri- can Foreign Policy (State University of New York Press, 1995); The Third World and South Africa; The West European Allies, The Third World and U.S. Foreign Policy; The Nonsuperpowers and South Africa; and Opportunities and Dangers of Soviet-Cuban Expansion. His articles have appeared in The Journal of Politics, Howard University Law Review, The Journal of Developing Areas, African Affairs, Africa Today, The World Today, and in other scholarly journals. He is also the author of book chapters.

Richard J. Payne

His honors include: A Fulbright-Hay Fellowship and Ford Foundation Fellowships.

Fields: American Foreign Policy, International Relations, Comparative Politics (Africa), and International Law.

Council (1995–97): Ian Shapiro,
Yale University

Ian Shapiro is professor of political science at Yale University where he has taught since 1984. He earned a bachelor's degree from Bristol University (UK) and master's and Ph.D. from Yale University. He also holds a J.D. from Yale.

Currently he serves as editor of the journal NOMOS and sits on the Council of the American Society for Political and Legal Philosophy. At Yale he is Director of the Program on Ethics, Politics, and Economics, and Director of Graduate Studies. He has served on the Yale University Press Publications Committee, Executive Committee of the Yale Councilium on International and Area Studies, as well as the Yale Tenure Appointments Committee.

Ian Shapiro

© Gale Zucker

His publications include "Human Nature and Political Philosophy," in Routledge Encyclopedia of Philosophy, ed. David Miller (forthcoming 1995); "The False Promise of Realist Social Theory," in Empirical Political Theory, ed. Kristen Monroe (forthcoming); "Three Ways to be a Democrat," Political Theory (1994); "Democracy and Religious Freedom: A Critique of Wisconsin v. Yoder," with Richard Arneson, NOMOS (forthcoming); "The Difference That Realism Makes: Social Science and the Politics of Consent," with Alexander Wendt, Politics and Society (1992); and "Impressions from the Soviet Union," with Robert Dahl, Dissent (1991).

He has been a fellow in International Jurisprudence at New York University Law School; a fellow of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation and a fellow of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences. He has been the recipient of a Senior Faculty Fellowship at Yale University and was winner of the 1985 APSA Leo Strauss Prize for the best dissertation in political philosophy.

Fields: Political Philosophy and Theory, Public Law and Courts and Economic Policy.

Council (1995–97): Paul Sniderman,
Stanford University

Paul Sniderman is a professor of political science at Stanford University. He received his B.A. from the University of Toronto, where he majored in philosophy, and his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley, where he concentrated on political theory and political behavior.

The conjunction of normative and empirical concerns has been at the center of Sniderman's research, and he is the author of a number of books, among them, Reasoning and Choice: Explorations in Political Psychology (1991); The Scar of Race (1993), and, most recently, The Clash of Rights: Liberty, Equality, and Legitimacy in Pluralist Democracy, which explore the competence of citizens to manage public choice, the conditions of tolerance both political and racial, and the dynamics of claims to political rights in pluralist democracies. His articles have appeared in the American Political Science Review, the American Journal of Political Science, the British Journal of Political Science, and the Canadian Journal of Political Science.

Paul Sniderman

Sniderman has, thanks to a knack in picking colleagues to work with, received a number of honors for research, among them, the Woodrow Wilson Award (with Richard A. Brody and Philip E. Tetlock) and the Franklin L. Burdette Pi Sigma Alpha Award (with Edward G. Carmines, Philip E. Tetlock and Anthony Tyler).

Fields: Public opinion; political psychology; voting behavior; political theory.

✓
Norman Ornstein to Head
Congressional Fellowship Program Advisory Committee

Norman Ornstein, resident scholar, American Enterprise Institute, is the new chair of the Con-