THE TELEPHONE ENTERPRISE

The Evolution of the Bell System's
Horizontal Structure, 1876–1909

Robert W. Garnet

In a study based extensively on previously untapped sources from the archives of AT&T, Robert Garnet charts the horizontal development of the Bell System by examining the technical, legal, operational, and administrative relationships that arose between the parent company and its associated telephone businesses. $22.50

THE ANATOMY OF A BUSINESS STRATEGY

Bell, Western Electric, and the Origins of the American Telephone Industry

George David Smith

In The Anatomy of a Business Strategy George David Smith analyzes the remarkable history of the acquisition of Western Electric by the American Bell Telephone Company and provides a timely reminder that modern telecommunications began as a risky entrepreneurial venture in an unregulated, competitive market. $20.00

FROM INVENTION TO INNOVATION

The Case of Long-Distance Telephone
Transmission at the Turn of the Century

Neil Wasserman

Neil Wasserman studies the invention and implementation of loading, the particular innovation that made the extension of long-distance service possible, and tells the story of the first application of modern scientific theory to the problems of telephone transmission. $17.50

Newcomen Awards in Business History

For the best article published in the Business History Review during the previous year the Society will award a prize of $300 and a scroll. For the best article published in the Business History Review during the previous year by a graduate student or a recent Ph.D. who has not published a book in business history, the Society will award a special prize of $150 and a scroll. Criteria for selection include originality, value, breadth and interest of contribution, quality of research materials and methods, and quality of presentation.

Winners will be selected by a panel of judges consisting of the editors and the members of the editorial board of the Business History Review, none of whom shall be eligible to receive a prize. The awards are administered by the editorial office of the Review. No special prize will be awarded in years when, in the opinion of the judges, no eligible article suitable for the prize was published, and no person may be awarded both prizes in any one year.

Thomas Newcomen Book Award in Business History

The Newcomen Society of the United States, in cooperation with the Business History Review, will award in 1988 the ninth in a series of triennial prizes consisting of $1,000 and a scroll for the best book on the history of business published in the United States between 1985 and 1987. "Business history" is defined in its broadest sense to include not only the history of firms or industries, but books tracing interactions of business leaders, analyses of business philosophy or behavior, and studies of the adjustment of businesses and businesspeople to their economic, political, and social environments. Criteria for selection will include contribution to knowledge, depth of analysis, soundness of reasoning, clarity of style and organization, and general readability and format.

Judges for the 1988 award will be announced at an appropriate time by the Harvard Business School and the Newcomen Society of the United States.

A Capital Approach to American Business History

Business Enterprise in American History

Mansel G. Blackford and K. Austin Kerr

Both of The Ohio State University
456 pages • paper • 1986

The new Blackford/Kerr survey develops two clear themes: the history of the firm and government-business relations. The authors cover all periods from the colonial era to the present, with an emphasis on the twentieth century and unparalleled coverage of the post-1945 years.

Assuming no background in history, Blackford and Kerr define terms when introduced and follow a straightforward chronological arrangement. The unusually engaging narrative incorporates many examples plus more detailed studies of well-known firms such as ITT, DuPont, General Motors, and Wang Laboratories.

For adoption consideration, request an examination copy from your regional Houghton Mifflin office.
