Demy 8vo. pp. xii+152. Paper covers, 9s net; cloth, 10s 6d net.

CONTENTS:—Introduction; The "Early Case"; The "Middle Case"; Principles for dealing with the "Middle Case"; The Colony and its Problems; The "Colony," its history and latest development; Psychology of the Consumptive; Summary and Conclusions; Index.

"THE greater part of the observations contained in the following chapters have already been published, and, whether separately or under our joint names, not a single line has been committed to print until, in consultation, we have given it most careful consideration.

It had been our intention to write a detailed and ordered account of the development of the Colony but events followed one another so rapidly and so many enquiries and demands for information as to the work done at Papworth both in the Colony and in the Village Settlement have been made that we decided merely to revise these several articles and publish them practically as originally printed. As soon as may be, however, we hope to give an account of the various trades started in the Colony and of other matters of moment involved in the treatment and training of consumptives, and the development and management of a Village Settlement."
